PATTERSON FINED HEAVILY BY COURT

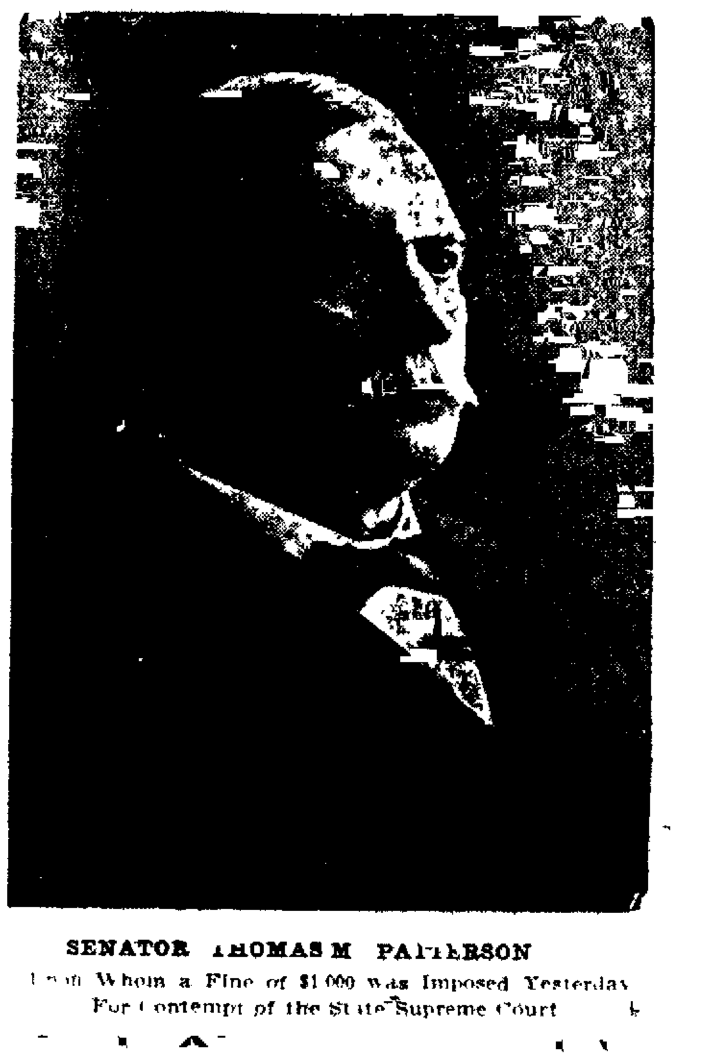

Contempt Proceedings Sustained---Stay of Execution Is Ordered Pending an Appeal to United States Supreme Tribunal.

DENVER, Nov. 29.—The supreme court today held United States Senator Thomas M. Patterson [illegible] contempt of court for print[ing] certain cartoons and editorials in his two newspapers, and fined him $1,000, directing that he [be] committed to jail until the fine [is] paid. Subsequently [the court] ordered a stay of ex[ecution] for sixty days [pending an] appeal by Senator Patterson [to] the supreme court of the United States.

Shortly before noon the court announced [that the] Patterson case would [be] called [and] directed that an attachment [issue] for the senator when he [failed to appear]. Later the senator [came into court] in company with the [illegible]. He protested against the [attachment] claiming that [he was not attempting] to avoid making an appearance, but the court reminded Senator Patterson that he had [agreed to appear] at a certain time. Con[siderable discussion] [illegible]

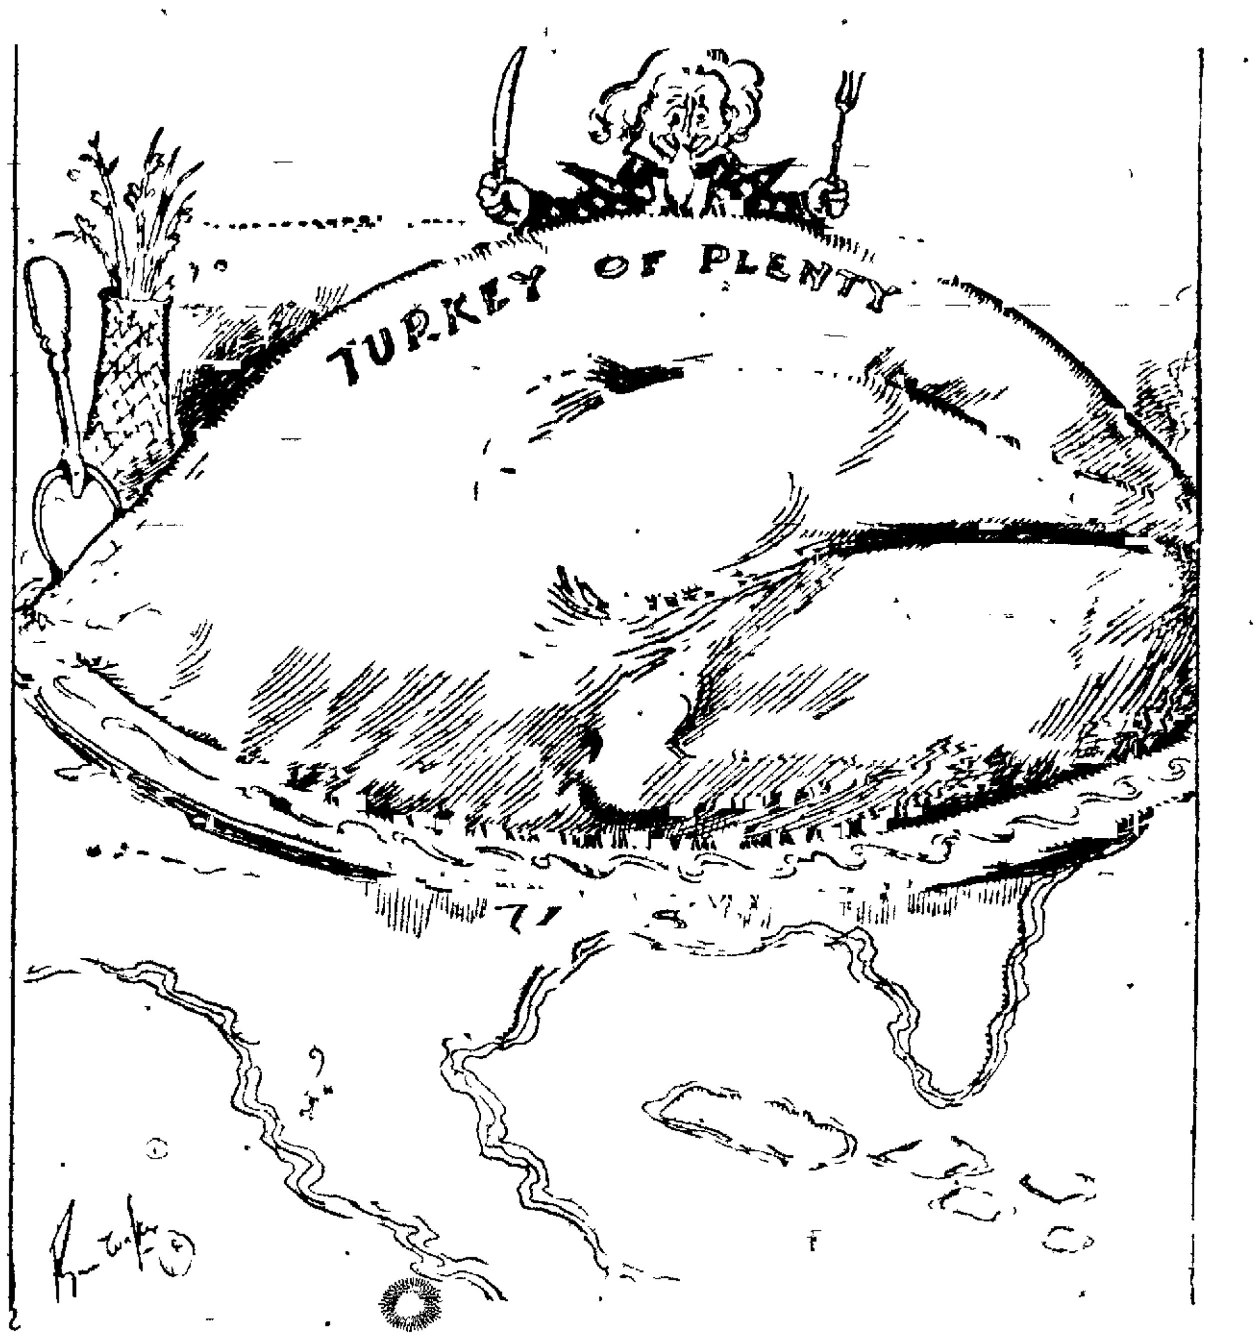

[illegible] issued the order accordingly. Chief Justice Gabbert announced at the conclusion of the Patterson case that the court would hand down a formal opinion in the case within a few days.

Justice Steele was the only member of the court who dissented in the decision of the court today.

SEBASTOPOL IS THE SCENE OF A DESPERATE CONFLICT

After Bombarding City, Mutinous Fleet of Ten Vessels Surrenders. Barracks of Revolters Carried by Storm---Cruiser Otchakoff a Burning Wreck.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 29.—Sebastopol was today the scene of a desperate battle between mutinous sailors and the troops in the forts on shore.

During the battle the city and the forts were bombarded by the guns of the cruiser Otchakoff, which lies a burning wreck off Admiralty Point, its hull riddled with shells and its flaunting red ensign of revolution hauled down. Many of the crew of the Otchakoff were killed or injured.

According to one report the barracks of the mutineers were carried by storm after the mutinous fleet, which is said to have numbered 10 vessels, had surrendered, and the whole position is now in the hands of the troops under the command of General Neplueff. The Associated Press, however, is unable to guarantee the correctness of this report.

Owing to the interruption of the telegraph, details of the battle are difficult to obtain but as the Associated Press is authoritatively informed by the naval general staff tonight, the battle was begun by the troops on shore, who opened fire on the Otchakoff, which was defiantly displaying the red flag.

The commander of the Otchakoff, Lieutenant Schmidt, immediately accepted the challenge, replying with both batteries, one trained on the town and the other on the Fort Alexander batteries on the north shore.

Captain Zellotti aide-de-camp to Admiral Wirenus chief of the naval staff, informed the Associated Press that the latest dispatches from Sebastopol showed that the Otchakoff was on fire and badly riddled with its revolutionary colors hauled down, but he was unable to give more definite information. According to a more detailed report received from another source and purporting to come from the admiralty, the battle began at 3 o clock this afternoon, when Lieutenant Schmidt, not receiving a reply to the demands of the mutineers, opened fire from a fleet of 10 ships, to which the northern batteries at Fort Alexander artillery posted on the shore and several vessels which remained loyal replied.

During the naval battle the sailors on shore entrenched in the barracks, defended their position with machine guns and rifles against the attacking infantry. After an engagement lasting two and a half hours with the Otchakoff riddled and on fire and the cruiser Dnieper and another vessel sunk, Lieutenant Schmidt who had been badly wounded, surrendered the entire squadron. The mutinous sailors on shore surrendered to the Brest and Bielostok regiments.

According to this report the Panteleimon, formerly the Kniaz Potemkin, was injured below the water line and a torpedo boat is ashore on the rocks.

No details of the casualties or the damage suffered by the town are obtainable by the admiralty, but owing to the confined space in which the action was fought it is improbable the town escaped without heavy damage.

The demands of the mutineers are said to have included, besides the 15 proposals dealing with service conditions, the convocation of a constituent assembly and the complete realization of the liberties promised by the imperial manifesto.

GAME OF FOOTBALL NEEDS REFORMING

President W. F. Slocum Thinks Agitation in Eastern Universities Will Result in Great Good---Should Destroy Professionalism.

President W. F. Slocum was seen last evening at [his] residence by a representative of The Gazette and was asked [what he thought] of the present agitation in regard to the game of football. He said that without doubt great good will come from [the] movement.

"[Insofar] as much stress is placed [on winning]," said Dr. Slocum, "it has led to a great deal of brutality and objectionable things [which] have crept into the sport. What is needed is a radical reformation of the way in which it is played. The method of playing football at the English schools has very little that is objectionable in it and before the game is given up let us find if there is not [a] way [of] eliminating all the unfortunate features.

A Wrong Spirit.

"A wrong spirit has crept into the [game] as [shown in] many of the songs and [yells] used on the grandstand [which] are demoralizing to the [players] for [their] ideas is the fighting and [illegible] on the field.

"All college games should be the [illegible] and should lead to [a] love of good sport for its own sake. That is too often wanted is not good [sport] but one set of men to whip another set and this is what engenders [the] same spirit as was seen at the old gladiatorial contests and at the prize fights of today. That will always brutalize people rather than give them the pleasure of good sport. Before throwing the game overboard let us find if it cannot be transformed into good sport.

Professionalism.

"Every [thing] possible should be done [by] college authorities to destroy all professionalism. Any institution that will allow its athletic organizations to hire men to play on the college teams ought to feel itself disgraced.

"One very great objection to the present college sports is that only a few enter into them. What is needed is something that will give everyone regular out-of-door exercise. I wish every student in Colorado college had a sport into which he entered systematically. No less sport is what is needed, but very much more of it. If it is a choice between these contests among institutions and some method of conducting the athletic work of a college so that everyone can enter into it, let us give up by all means the intercollege games, but it ought to be possible to have both of them. Fine, manly sport does not hurt any one, but everything that partakes of the prize-fight and the gladiatorial contest ought to be banished. Above all the relations between educational institutions ought to be those of mutual courtesy and recognition of the high purposes that should be at the heart of every college or university."

PRESIDENT AGAINST NEW YORK BOSSISM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—President Roosevelt has declared himself against bossism in New York city politics. This declaration he has made emphatic in letters to personal and political friends regarding the selection of a president of the Republican committee of New York county. He deprecates the interference of outsiders in the politics of the county and has indicated his view that nothing ought to be done by such outsiders that might be confounded with dictation.

THANKSGIVING IN THIS CITY TO BE JOYOUS CELEBRATION

Union Church Services This Morning, Outdoor Sport This Afternoon and Dinners and Dances This Evening.

Colorado Springs will celebrate Thanksgiving today in many ways. The churches will hold union services, charitable institutions will give bountiful supplies to needy families, the stores and business houses will close for the day, every [illegible] in the city will feast on turkey and a splendid sporting program will be offered to those who wish for recreation and [illegible].

Church Services.

The Rev. G. H. Simonson has been selected by the Ministerial association to preach at the union service this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the First Congregational church. The Rev. J. B. Gregg will have charge of the services.

Congregations of Grace Episcopal church, St Stephen's Episcopal church, and the Church of the Good Shepherd, of Colorado City, will unite in service this morning at 10:30 o clock at Grace church. Right Rev. Charles L. Olmsted, of Denver, will preach.

At the First Congregational church, Colorado City, the churches of that city will hold a union service this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Duncan Lamont will preach.

Stores Closed.

All dry goods, clothing and shoe stores will be closed all day while the groceries, meat markets and barber shops will close at 10 o'clock a. m. There will be no call on the Mining Exchange and the banks will not open. The City and county courts will observe the holiday and the postoffice will make only one delivery.

The poor of the city will be well cared for today. The People's Alliance, the Associated Charities, the Salvation Army, the Women's Relief corps, the Elks' club and other institutions will cover the town thoroughly and see that no needy family is without a Thanksgiving dinner.

Feast at Y. M. C. A.

At the Y. M. C. A. the young men of the city who are away from home will be treated to a turkey and cranberry feast. Special dinners will be served at the Printers Home, Deaf and Blind Institute, hospitals and jails, while every home table in the city will be laden with the good things. Members of the Democratic club will have a novel feast in the way of an oppossum and yellow yam spread.

Colorado Springs council No. 582, Knights of Columbus, will observe today with a memorial service for their departed brothers at St. Mary's Catholic church this morning at 9 o'clock, an initiatory ceremony, at Odd Fellows hall this afternoon and an elaborate banquet this evening. The Rev. Father Louis F. Hagus, Father Raber, Father Clark, Dan B. Carey, of Denver; M. W. Purcell and E. R. Joyce will speak at the memorial services at St. Mary's.

Outdoor Sports.

In the line of sports, today's offerings are varied and should draw large crowds.

The main attraction will be the football game this afternoon at Washburn field between Colorado Springs High school and North Denver High school for the interscholastic championship of the state. The contest on the gridiron will be called at 2:45 o'clock and will be for blood from the outset. The big game will be played on Washburn field, just west of the Colorado college campus.

Race Meet.

A broncho busting contest for $150 will be the feature of the race meet at Roswell track this morning under the auspices of the Driving club. Charles [illegible], who owned the bucking bull which threw all comers at the meet here last summer, will be pitted against Harry Brown, foreman of the Garden ranch. A fine program of five events will be raced by local horses.

An 18-hole golf handicap will be the bill at the Town and Gown club all

COLORADO GRANITE FEDERAL BUILDING

Representative Franklin E. Brooks Gets Assurance of Larger and More Substantial Postoffice Structure for This City.

Twenty-three hundred feet of additional floor space.

Built of Colorado granite, instead of limestone or sandstone.

These are among the most important changes in the plan for the new Colorado Springs postoffice building, which will probably be secured by Representative Franklin E. Brooks.

Advices from Washington to The Gazette say that Mr. Brooks has received assurances from the supervising architect that the postoffice building will be extended east to the extreme legal limit of the lots at the corner of East Pike's Peak and Nevada avenues, that the additions will be raised to the full height of the building, and that the three lowest bidders for the contract will be asked to submit figures for substituting granite for sandstone or limestone. The plans also have been arranged so that the building can be enlarged during its construction if a new appropriation for this purpose is secured. The three lowest bidders for the contract were W. H. Maxwell, Laramie, Wyo., $105,972; J. H. Weitz, South Omaha, Neb., $107,470; William Weber, Huntington, W. Va., $108,[illegible].

Already the government has made appropriations aggregating $175,000 for the site and the new postoffice building in Colorado Springs. The bids, which have been received on two different occasions, run thousands of dollars below the amount left after [illegible] was expended for the site.

After bids were received the first time and found to be far [illegible] of available money, changes [were] made in the plans and specifications of the building. The [illegible] to be replaced by solid stone [illegible] and a number of other changes were [made, which] increased the cost by about $[illegible]. The margin between the contracts and the appropriation, however, was yet too great, and it was found possible to enlarge the building as well as to have it constructed of better materials.

COAL MINERS GET INCREASE IN WAGES

PITTSBURG, Nov. 29.—The Dispatch tomorrow will say: "Coal operators in the Pittsburg district have decided to offer the 35,000 members of the United Mine Workers an advance of 5 per cent of wages to forestall the proposed demand of the miners' convention for an advance of 12 per cent. This action is not confined to the Pittsburg district alone, but embraces Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania.

MORGAN IS APPOINTED MINISTER TO HAVANA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Edward V. Morgan, relieved from his post as American minister at Seoul, Korea, by reason of the establishment of a Japanese protectorate there, has been appointed minister to Hanava to succeed Herbert G. Squiers, whose resignation has been received and accepted. Messrs. Morgan and Squiers were both appointed to the diplomatic service from New York, but Mr. Squiers was born in Canada.

For a long time past the relations between Mr. Squiers and the Cuban government have not been thoroughly satisfactory to the state department, which regards it as essential to the conduct of business between the two governments that their respective ministers shall be thoroughly acceptable at their posts.

It is said that in interviews in the Havana Telegraph and a leading New York newspaper the minister afforded much encouragement to the American colonists on the Isle of Pines and Americans at home who had property in the Isle. The administration had all along been advising these people to submit themselves to the Cuban government, as shown in Secretary Root's letter to Mr. Maynard, published this morning.

GREAT GAME WILL CLOSE FOOTBALL SEASON TODAY

Springs Terrors and North Denver High Will Fight for Interscholastic Honors on Washburn Field. Game Called at 2.45 O'clock.

The 1905 football season in Colorado Springs will be wound up today with one of the greatest gridiron battles of the year. At 2.45 o'clock this afternoon, the Colorado Springs High school and North Denver High school eleven will clash on Washburn field for the interscholastic championship of Colorado.

Besides the usual eagerness of two teams in an endeavor to win, there is a little feeling between the two schools which will be wiped out on the gridiron today. North Denver feels that she has received a little the worst of it from the locals in that this game should have been played in Denver instead of the Springs and she means to take it out on the Terrors this afternoon. But the Terrors will "smile and push;" in other words they intend to give the northerners the worst drubbing of the season.

People who "dope" on the score before the game generally miss the mark but Coach J. R. Richards, of the High school has come pretty near hitting the bullseye all this year and he says that the Terrors will win 18 to 0. The Tigers defeated North Denver 36 to 0 early in October and, judging from this score and the way the Terrors have fought the Tigers recently makes the locals more than probable winners in today's game.

Both teams are in great condition and a battle royal is assured those who see the contest this afternoon. The line-up will be as follows:

Cold. Springs	Position	N. Denver.
Harket	l end r	McClelland
Morrell	l tackle r	Simpson
Shaw	l guard r	Taylor
Reed	center	Stillwell
Roe	r guard l	Zimmers
R. Morrison	r tackle l	Palmer

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY TEAM SEES NO HOPE FOR FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—To dispose of rumors that the action of Columbia faculty committee on undergraduate organizations in abolishing football at Columbia was taken merely to force the rules committee to reform the game and that the game may be revived at Columbia when such a result is attained, Dean George W. Kitchenay of the Columbia university law school made the following statement today:

"The action of the faculty as I understand it is not aimed at association football or the so-called Rugby game, but at the game of football as it now exists in our American colleges.

"There is no reason to believe the committee or the football element in our colleges has any conception of the discredit into which this game has fallen and no reason, therefore, to hope for a revision of the rules that will have any material influence on the game. But the truth is that the worst features of the game are such as no revision of the rules will touch—the dishonest and unsportsmanlike spirit which the game at present fosters. A revision of the rules can at best do no more than relieve the game of some of the dangers to life and limb which it now involves and to render the playing of 'dirty' football a little less easy of concealment.

"When any game reaches the point when it needs to be hedged about with stringent rules to prevent the young men in our colleges from resorting to trickery and dishonesty in their college sports, it is vain to look to any reform of the rules of the game for relief from its evils.

"For these reasons it does not seem to me that the action taken by the faculty committee yesterday is likely to be affected by subsequent proceedings on the part of Walter Camp and his committee."

While it is generally conceded at Columbia, and among football men, that the game has been killed, a mass meeting of students has been called for Tuesday to ascertain the real sentiment of the students on the question and if it be against the recent action of the committee to submit a petition to President Butler.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The council of New York university at a special meeting today unanimously committed itself to the abolition of football. Final action will not be taken here until the next regular meeting of the council, three weeks from Monday.

MICHIGAN AND CHICAGO READY FOR BIG GAME

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The football teams of the University of Chicago and the University of Michigan will clash on Marshall field tomorrow in what is believed will prove to be the greatest football game ever contested in the middle west. This year, for the first time in several seasons, the winning team tomorrow will have a clear title to the football championship of the "Big Nine."

Michigan will go into tomorrow's battle with its full strength. The Chicago team has not been quite as fortunate, as De Tray, one of its strongest players, will not play because of injuries received in the game with Northwestern university two weeks ago.

Coach Yost and his squad, numbering 24 players, reached Chicago this afternoon confident of a victory tomorrow.

IMPORTANT PROVISIONS OF COMMERCE COMMISSION'S RATE BILL SUMMARIZED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The senate committee on interstate commerce today received a copy of the rate bill prepared by the Interstate Commerce commission to be submitted to congress for amendment to the interstate commerce law. The members of the commission who were present today read the bill, but took no action, and adjourned until Friday. The bill is very extensive, covering 27 pages of typewritten sheets, and it proposes to amend materially the present law.

The more important provisions of the bill are summarized as follows:

It defines the word "transportation" as used in the bill so as to include all instrumentalities employed by the carrier, including elevators, terminals, cars, whether owned by the carrier or other parties, for refrigeration, ventilation or other purposes and requires the carrier to furnish such transportation upon reasonable request of the shippers, publishing the total charges for such transportation as now required by law.

It makes the through or joint rate, where goods are shipped from one part of the United States to another through a foreign country, subject to the control of the interstate commerce law and enforces the provisions by making the merchandise passing through the foreign country from one part of the United States and delivered in the United States subject to the custom duties at the frontier unless the through rate is filed with the Interstate Commerce commission as published.

It authorizes the commission through inspectors to examine the accounts of interstate railroads, forbids the keeping of any other books of accounts except those prescribed by the commission and requires roads to make a great variety of reports in regard to their business.

It gives the Interstate Commerce commission the power, where rates and practices of railways are complained of by individuals or corporations, to determine upon full hearing what a just and reasonable rate is, which should take the place of the rate or practice condemned by the commission. And in discharging this duty the commission is given power:

"To fix a minimum rate.

"To fix the differential and to prescribe both maximum and minimum rates.

"To change the classification of any article."

A similar power is given to establish through rates and joint rates and to fix the terms and conditions under which rates shall be operated, if the carriers fail or refuse to agree upon the same.

It also provides that where the owner of the property transported renders any service in connection with the transportation or furnishes any instrumentality used, the commission may determine what is a reasonable charge to be paid by carriers for such service. It provides for the collection in the courts of overcharges found by the commission and the penalties for the failure of the carriers to observe final orders of the commission.

It provides that the final orders of the commission shall take effect within 30 days from the time they are served on the carrier and unless vacated by the courts, said orders will remain effective for the space of one year.

In case the carriers complained of object to putting orders of the commission into effect, their right to have the same reviewed in the circuit court of the United States is provided for and an elaborate form of procedure is outlined, differing only in one important particular from that now established for the courts of the United States, namely, that the chancellor may extend the time within which such orders shall take effect, not to exceed 60 days from the date of service of the orders on the carriers, and that the court may also, if it appears that the order is unlawful, suspend its operation within the discretion of the court. An appeal from the circuit court to the supreme court without supersedeas is allowed.

The bill provides that no costs be allowed the petitioner in the circuit court. In the cases appealed to the circuit court the United States is defendant and if the proceedings are dismissed, the defendant shall have judgment for its costs. The defense in these proceedings is conducted by the government through the district attorney in the district where action is brought under the direction of the attorney general. If a carrier does not comply with the final order of the commission or if any of the officers or agents knowingly fails or neglects to obey the same, they shall forfeit to the United States $5,000 for each offense. Each violation shall be deemed a separate offense, and a continuance of the violation each day shall be deemed a separate offense. These penalties shall become applicable unless within the time limit proceedings to vacate the order shall have been begun, or unless the commission by supplemental proceedings has modified or suspended the same.

STORM'S FURY IS TOLD BY A LONG LIST OF VICTIMS

DULUTH, MINN., Nov. 29.—A complete list of those who perished on the wrecked steamer Matuafa which foundered near the canal entrance yesterday afternoon, follows:

WILLIAM MOST, Cleveland, chief engineer.

CLAUDE A. FARINGER, Cleveland, first assistant engineer.

JAMES EARLY, Buffalo, second assistant engineer.

CARL CARLSON, Chicago, oiler.

WILLIAM GILCHRIST, Wiarton, Ont., oiler.

THOMAS WOODGATE, residence unknown, shipped at Conneaut, fireman.

THOMAS M'CLOUD, deckhand.

J. H. WRIGHT, Cleveland, steward.

WALTER BUSH, Amherstburg, Ont., second cook.

DULUTH, MINN., Nov. 29.—The net results of the great storm on Lake Superior as far as known are the total wrecks of the steamers Matuafa, Crescent City, Edenborn and Lafayette, the sinking of the Elwood in Duluth harbor, the stranding of the barge Manila and the steamer W. B. England, the strandings of the Bransford at Isle Royale and two barges missing, the Madeira and Constitution. The Bransford escaped with a puncture in her forward compartment and succeeded in reaching Duluth. A fireman of the Edenborn was lost. Their names are unobtainable.

President Coulby of the Pittsburg Steamship company arrived at midnight on a special train with much wrecking apparatus and an effort will be made to save several of the stranded boats, among them the Manila. The Lafayette is practically a total wreck. The Manila is in good condition and may be saved.

HELENA, MONT., Nov. 29.—The coldest weather of the present winter is reported by the government observer today. Havre reports 24 degrees below zero. It was 13 below in Helena this morning and eight below at Miles City. Both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern westbound passenger trains are several hours late today as a result of the excessive cold.

mittee would recommend legislation to safeguard their interests.

George P. McClelland, a former state senator, testified today that he lived in the Mutual company's house at Albany, conducted by Andrew C. Fields, in 1903, while he was a senator and a member of the insurance committee of that body. He stated that it never occurred to him as improper as he and Fields were old friends. He was shown that in several years, while McClelland was not a senator, he was retained by the Mutual Life at $3,000 a year and Mr. Hughes had much difficulty in obtaining a statement of what he did to earn that retainer. He said he appeared before legislative committees to argue against the savings bank tax and franchise tax bills.

Mr. McClelland had first stated that he never was employed by the Equitable Life when Mr. Hughes read a voucher for $3,000 paid by that society to the firm of which Mr. McClelland is a member. It was written in his handwriting, but McClelland said he could not remember it. It was credited to a "writer company account."

John A. McCall, son of the president of the New York Life, told the committee today that Andrew Hamilton, the legislative agent who got large sums of money without an accounting from the New York Life, had been located in Paris and that he had received a message from President McCall asking him to come to New York to appear before the committee and render an accounting of his expenses. To induce him to do that, Mr. McCall said he was going to start for Paris on Saturday.

The committee and all of its counsel held a protracted executive session at the close of the day's hearing, after which it was announced that the committee would complete its investigations by December 31, as it is due to report to the new legislature in the first week in January.

The committee will sit five days next week and through the Christmas holidays.

PARDON FOR E. E. BROOKS

GOVERNOR M'DONALD AUTHORIZES THE RELEASE OF DENVER MURDERER TODAY.

DENVER, Nov. 29.—Edward E. Brooks, who was convicted of the murder of his father-in-law, A. G. Craig, and sentenced to a term of 14 years in the penitentiary May 14, 1899, will receive the Thanksgiving pardon from the governor tomorrow. Warden Cleghorn has stated that Brooks was the most worthy one and asked the governor to grant his pardon. Governor McDonald also singled out Brooks as the one most worthy of executive clemency, and forwarded the papers to the warden today. Tomorrow, after the Thanksgiving dinner has been finished, Warden Cleghorn will make the announcement of his selection and read the governor's paper.

In 1896 Brooks was married to Mary Rebecca Smith and in two years a child was born. Brooks and his wife separated and Mrs. Brooks went to live with her stepfather, A. G. Craig, in North Denver. When Brooks went to Craig's home to get his child a fight followed, in which Craig was killed.

THREE MORE ILLEGAL VOTERS SENT TO PRISON

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Three more men were sent to prison today for election frauds. Albert Farrar and Thomas McCall were each sentenced to the penitentiary for one year and Bartholomew Wallace was sentenced to the Elmira reformatory. All were convicted of voting twice in this city at the last election.

Lord Brassey offered to erect, at his own expense, a large number of wooden cottages on the English model for the sufferers by the recent Italian earthquake. The offer was accepted by the government.

This laxative makes strength

Most physics you have taken no doubt have left you weak. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an exception, because, while it is a laxative, it is at the same time one of the greatest stomach tonics ever compounded.

A physic which leaves you weak is dangerous, because it soon becomes necessary for you to take a drug of some kind before the bowels can be induced to act properly.

When this condition is reached, the patient has lost his strength and may become the victim of all sorts of stomach disorders.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains a great deal of pepsin, as its name indicates, and so strengthens the weakest stomach that it can properly and voluntarily perform all its functions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is pleasant to take and it never causes griping or pains of any sort, and in all cases of stomach disorder is undoubtedly the finest preparation known.

All druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at 50 cents and $1.00 bottle.

Money back if it doesn't satisfy.

THE PARAMOUNT IMPORTANCE OF GOOD TEETH

is not realized by most people. The teeth are the least thought of in caring for the general bodily health. This is a grievous mistake. You depend upon your teeth for grinding the food that is to produce flesh and blood, you depend upon the teeth for the mixing of the salivary gland secretions with food to make your food assimilate and digest. Decayed teeth mix unhealthy saliva in with your food; throw off offensive odors and produce aches; and in time serious complications. You'd better take advantage of our free examination today. PLANS OF HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY TO BEAUTIFY CITY

The spirit of improvement seems to [illegible] The Horticultural so[ciety] which is always a large factor in [the hist]ory of civic improvement, is plan[ning] to broaden its scope and work [und]er the [illegible] during the coming [yea]r to beautify the city.

It is planned to make each block a [illegible] improvement society within it[self] and the Horticultural society will [a]ssist [in every] way possible to make [it] effective. Numerous [persons] have already been approached [on the] subject and the plan is meeting [with favor.] [illegible] Colorado City and [illegible] asked to join and the [illegible] is already as[sured] [illegible] cities.

The people of West Colorado Springs [have] set an example to the whole community by [illegible] form and continuous [illegible] work. It is figured that if the [illegible] will get together on a movement involving the expenditure of thousands of dollars they will be most glad to unite in any similar public move that involves practically no expense but merely a little labor.

The Horticultural society will cooperate with property owners in securing improvements in the way of flowers, vines for unsightly buildings or spots, pretty lawns, the destruction of weeds on vacant lots and in many cases it hopes the improvement of vacant lots.

The services of expert gardeners and florists will be placed at the disposal of property owners so they can act intelligently and put out the things that will grow best under the special circumstances.

"UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES."

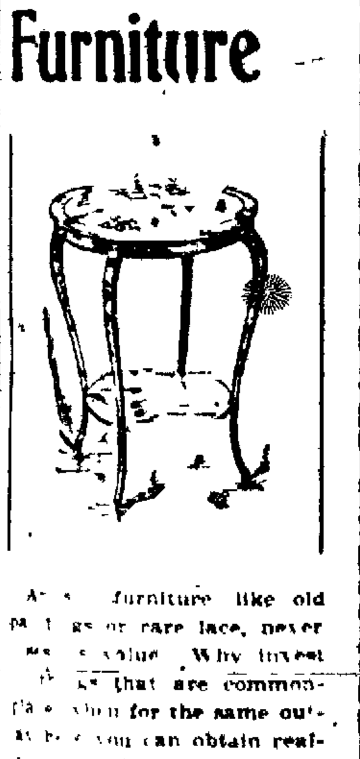

Under Southern Skies, the greatest of all plays of southern life now before the public, is well known by reputation although the play has not been seen here. The announcement that this play will be seen at the Opera house next Saturday should be pleasant news to our theatergoers. Under Southern Skies has been playing to a succession of large and fashionable audiences ever since its first production at the Theater Republic (now Belasco's theater), New York city, in November, 1901. The play is unique among all recent efforts of our playwrights to depict life below Mason and Dixon's line. The war is not touched upon, the period of the play being about 1875—some ten years after the great rebellion. The play portrays the social life of certain aristocratic families of the south and the story woven about them is peculiarly southern in its nature. No other section of our country could furnish a similar motive for a drama. It is a story of absorbing interest and is founded upon an incident in real life. There are many amusing and interesting characters and incidents in the play and a Halloween celebration and pumpkin dance are novelties which rouse the audience to a high pitch of laughter and enthusiasm. The cast is a large one, numbering twenty-three people.

"WHEN JOHNNY COMES MARCHING HOME"

The music of Stange and Edwards' new comic opera "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," which will be presented at the Opera house on next Tuesday evening by W. T. Carleton opera company, has already become vastly popular even in cities where the opera has not yet been heard. Among the songs which have established themselves as prime favorites are "My Own United States," "Good Day, Yankee," "Years Touch Not the Heart," "My Honeysuckle Girl" and "When Our Lips in Kisses Met." Another song which is considered a gem is "Katie My Southern Rose," sung by Johnny first with the male chorus and later by the combined chorus of boys and girls. The business in this song with the girls nodding and beckoning in the quaint costumes of 40 years ago undoubtedly has much to do with its success. The great charm of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" and the hold which it undoubtedly has taken on the popular mind is probably the result of the original treatment in the score of familiar themes. A statement which seems paradoxical and is yet true. Then, too, the scenic environment is picturesque and satisfying and the costumes are undeniably a novelty and an altogether pleasing one to the present generation, whatever they may have been to the past.

Home trading is essential to the prosperity of Colorado Springs. Let us prosper.

BURTON IS SENTENCED

GETS SIX MONTHS IN JAIL AND IS FINED $2,500—WILL APPEAL—RELEASE BOND FURNISHED.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—United States Senator J. Ralph Burton of Kansas was today sentenced in the United States circuit court to serve six months in the county jail, Ironton, Mo., and to pay a fine of $2,500 as the penalty for conviction on the indictment charging that he had acted in the capacity of a paid attorney in behalf of the Rialto Grain and Securities company of St. Louis before the postoffice department to prevent the issuance of a fraud order. He was released on bond in the sum of $5,000 with R. C. Kerens as surety pending appeal. After a trial which continued throughout last week Senator Burton was found guilty early last Sunday morning on six counts of the indictment, four of which charged that he agreed to receive compensation for his services as an attorney before the postoffice department and that he received compensation. Judge Vandevanter imposed sentence of imprisonment on one count on each of these two divisions making the terms concurrent and in addition assessed the fine on but one of the counts. As provided in statute 1782, which Senator Burton was convicted of having violated, Judge Vandevanter imposed the additional penalty debarring Senator Burton forever from holding any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States government. The sentence imposed in the previous trial and conviction of Senator Burton before Judge Adams was six months in the Iron county jail and to pay a fine of $5,000. On appeal the verdict was reversed by the United States supreme court.

TEN PER CENT OF PEOPLE ILLITERATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—According to a bulletin issued today by the census bureau about 106 persons out of 1,000 in the United States over ten years old are unable to write, which is equivalent to about one in ten. Of the native white population, only 46 out of every 1,000, or fewer than one in twenty are found in the illiterate class, while of the foreign born 128 out of every 1,000 and of the negroes 465 out of every 1,000 are illiterate. International comparisons, restricted as far as possible to corresponding classes of the population, are on the whole favorable to this country, indicating that in most European countries illiteracy is much more prevalent than it is here, although the United States is still far behind Germany, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Switzerland. There is also ground for satisfaction in the statistical evidence that illiteracy is steadily being reduced. In 1880 the number of illiterates per 1,000 was 132 for the total population, sixty-two for the native white population, 130 for the foreign born white and 588 for negroes, Indians and Mongolians. The female sex is shown to be more illiterate than the male, the illiteracy for females being 112 per 1,000 and for males 101. But the contrast is less marked than it was in 1890 when the illiteracy for the two sexes was 144 and 123 respectively.

Los Angeles, Cal., capitalists have a plan on foot to take over all the saloon licenses now out, and pay the city $180,000 a year from them. This is the sum now received. The number of saloons will then be reduced from 200 to 75 and the stockholders in the syndicate will receive 6 per cent on their investment, the remainder going to the city.

WILLIAM M. BURRIS DIES AT ZION CITY

DENVER, Nov. 29.—Word has just been received here of the death at Zion City, Ill., the headquarters of the Dowie settlement, of William Monroe Burris, who previous to his becoming a follower of Alexander Dowie was prominent in Colorado as a lawyer and later as a mining promoter. Burris went to Cripple Creek in 1893 and became a leading member of the bar of that city. He in the course of time acquired a bond and lease on the Little May property, which he later sold for $200,000. The property is now a part of the El Paso group. Burris then attached himself to W. S. Stratton as attorney and acted in a professional capacity for Stratton until he left Colorado for Zion City.

TISDALE'S BODY IS FOUND IN RIVER

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The body of John N. Tisdale, a wealthy mine operator who disappeared from the Hotel Seville on November 5 was today found in the Harlem river. On the body was found a gold watch with the initials J. N. T. and about $40 in money.

SOME THINGS THAT MUST GO.

While the New York legislative commission which has been investigating the life insurance business is taking a short rest from its labors the time is favorable to schedule some of the abuses and evils it has brought to light which must inevitably be ended if policy holders are to be adequately protected:

The deferred dividend is productive of great evils. It is the father of many offenses. Among others are:

The trick policy which confuses investment with insurance elements so as to mislead policy holders.

The rebate system.

The control of companies for agents for revenue only.

The extravagantly high commissions, which pay for new business more than honest actuaries say any new business can possibly be worth.

The actuaries who guess dividends in the way the presidents want them to guess, instead of figuring accurately.

The proxies that run for more than a year.

The presidents swollen with power and perquisites.

The leech relatives.

The dummy directors.

The syndicates of the "you furnish the money, we get the profits" type.

The subsidiary trust companies.

The lobbyists with their "legal expenses."

The secret campaign contributions.

The falsification of books between Dec. 31 and Jan. 2.

The low rate loans to favorites.

The "philanthropy" type of management.

Whether federal regulation is secured or not, these evils must be checked.—Chicago Record-Herald.

DARWINIAN THEORY.

Some of Darwin's boy friends once plotted a surprise for the naturalist. They slew a centipede, glued on it a beetle's head, and also added to its body the wings of a butterfly and the long legs of a grasshopper. Then they put the new insect in a box and knocked at the great man's door. "We found this in the fields," they cried with eager voices. "Do tell us what it can be." Darwin looked at the strange compound and then at the boys' innocent faces. "Did it hum when you caught it?" he asked. "Oh, yes, sir," they answered quickly, nudging one another. "It hummed like anything." "Then," said the philosopher, "it is a humbug."—The Tatler.

SOUGHT TO PLAY YORICK.

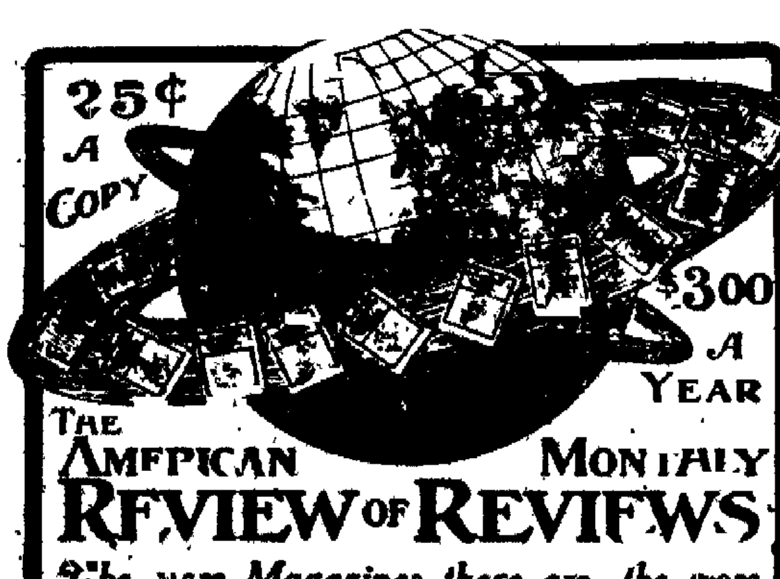

One of the oddest bequests ever made was that which fell to Irving's lot when an old Yorkshire man died leaving a clause in his will to the effect that the famous actor, of whom he was an ardent admirer, was to have his skull and use it as Yorick's whenever he played Hamlet. Irving, however, respected the wishes of his admirer's heirs, executors and assigns and relinquished his claim to the relic.

DEAD MAN GETS LETTERS PATENT

CHARLES MANNEL WHO DIED OVER YEAR AGO WAS INVENTOR OF NEW LEAD-BURNING PROCESS.

Letters patent were received yesterday by Mrs. Emma Stewart, administratrix of the estate of Charles Mannel for new process of lead-burning which will save thousands of dollars annually to gold ore reduction works.

Charles Mannel, the inventor, died in Colorado City, October 11, 1904. He was a native of Westphalia, Germany. He studied metallurgy and became a lead-burner. As such, he held a position in Russia, then in Denmark, when he became subject to military duty. He came to the United States in 1902. He was a student and employed his leisure hours experimenting with a gold filter, his object being to reduce the amount of lead burning to a minimum, an occupation which no one can follow many years without injury to health.

Mr. Mannel was employed at the Telluride mill's and occupied a small house on Colorado avenue owned by Tom Stewart, and to no one but Mr. and Mrs. Stewar did he confide the secret of his patent.

He died of pneumonia, superinduced by over-exertion and worry about his pending patent.

Knowing how particular the German authorities are in accepting a statement of death, and being desirous of locating Mannel's father, Beyle and son took a death mask of the man and after much correspondence located the father, Clemens Mannel, in Paderborn, Germany. The father is over 80 years of age and too feeble to cross the ocean to look after his inherited interests and has sent F. Beyle power of attorney to act for him in the disposal of the valuable patent.

HARRIMAN RESIDENCE HAD HEAVY INSURANCE

The home of Dr. Harriman, 21 Telluride avenue, which was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday night, was insured in the Hartford company for $1,000, in the Aetna company for $1,450 on building and $500 on furniture, and in the Phoenix company for $750 on furniture. The first three policies were made out by J. P. Jackson.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES THIS MORNING

Thanksgiving will be generally observed throughout the city today. Union Thanksgiving services will be held at 10:30 o'clock at the First Congregational church, corner Tenth street and Colorado avenue. The Rev. Duncan Lamont, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach and short addresses will be made by ministers of other churches. Nearly all stores will be closed and the streets will have a Sunday appearance.

WATER RIGHTS ARE INVOLVED

SUIT BROUGHT BY OTERO DISTRICT MAY AFFECT WATER OWNED BY THIS CITY.

The city council at the last meeting instructed City Attorney J. P. Jackson to look into the matter of a suit brought brought by the Otero Irrigation district to adjust water rights, and to appear and represent the city in the suit, if found necessary.

This city has some of the oldest water rights on Fountain creek, a branch of the Arkansas river. The Bott and Chambers ditch was taken out in 1864. This ditch is on the south side and now belongs to the city, and is used in watering the streets on that side. The Sheldon ditch was also taken out in 1864. A few years ago the water rights in the Sheldon ditch were turned into the Colorado Springs ditch, which ditch is now owned jointly by Colorado Springs and Colorado City, Colorado City having a one-fourth interest therein.

It is important that Colorado City maintain its rights and priorities to use water. On investigation the city attorney finds that this seems to be a suit brought for the purpose of changing the points of diversion and use of certain priorities of right in water district No. 11 from which their present location to a ditch or canal in district No. 17, known as the Otero canal, and gives notice to all persons interested in water rights in these districts and all districts located between them.

This city is located in district No. 10, which includes all rights on the Fountain within El Paso county, and its rights are probably not affected by this suit. However, if found necessary, the city attorney will appear at the time set for the hearing of the matter on January 15, 1906.

MIDSHIPMAN MERIWETHER TELLS ABOUT FATAL FIGHT

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 29.—Midshipman Merriwether took the witness stand in his own behalf today. His story of the trouble between himself and Branch did not differ substantially from the testimony of previous witnesses. He told of having had a fight with Midshipman Humphreys in 1904 in which the latter "knocked out" witness. Speaking of the night when the feud came to a head, Meriwether said:

"I went in Branch's room and the light was turned on. I said that I had come to see him about what occurred. Branch said, 'you are a damn fool to come to see me, you know that my class hates you.' I said, 'that is not so, you are the only one who does.' Branch then asked, 'what if I do.' I said, 'then you are a damn sneaking coward and I will fight you though I am not in fighting condition.' I added 'if you get up I will lick you.' He said, 'you mean you will try.' 'That's what I will,' I said, 'and if you get up I will show you.' He did not get up and after a little further conversation Jaeger and I left the room."

"I called Branch what I did because I was told the custom was that a fight would end feeling and Branch had told me he was going to 'bilge' me, that is, make me fail, and I wanted to fight and end the matter. I did not intend to fight when I went to the room, but he again told me that he intended to bilge me."

Meriwether's counsel then asked him about his refraining from hitting Branch during the fight, although allowed to do so under the rules. The witness told of two instances of this, explaining that he did not believe any blows should be struck in a stand off fight unless men are on their feet. He also told how he fouled and offered to give up the fight, but the seconds would not allow it.

"After the quarrel with Branch," said he, "Midshipman McKittrick came to my room and told me that he had been appointed Branch's second to arrange a fight. I wanted Jaeger as mine. The arrangements were then made. During the fight, we first fell under the blinds. About the twelfth round I rushed Branch and both fell sideways through the door. The next round, Branch hit a terrific uppercut. It stunned me for some rounds. I returned to his jaw. He threw his head back and I returned, but swung my arm around his neck.

"We fell in that position, his head striking the floor. We were lifted. My arm could not be used for the two rounds. My left arm was cru[shed] in a football game about three [years] ago. I had a severe operation, but [recover]ed physically. However, I [was] next year. The arm is still weaker [than] the other."

Meriwether then showed a deep s[car] on the wrist of the left arm. He [said] a silver plate had been put in there.

"At the end of the 22d round," [he] continued, "Branch came across [the] room and we both apologized and said, 'afterward we will be friends.' [We] then left, and I have never seen [him] since. We parted as friends. I [did] not go to breakfast the next morn[ing.] I had to go to the hospital. An ord[erly] came and said that there was a [man] unconscious in the hall. He was brou[ght] to the hospital that night and in [the] told me that Branch was doing [well.] About 3 o'clock the next after[noon I] was told by a nurse that Branch [was] dead. I requested an official inve[stiga]tion by the superintendent. I was [griev]ed beyond expression. I think that Branch was indeed fortunate in be[ing in] his place, in going to sleep and [not] waking up, than to be in mine and h[av]ing to live this life after this sad deplorable affair."

In answer to a question Meriwe[ther] said:

"If I had not resented Mr. Bra[nch's] continued actions I would be in [the] same position as another c[lass]mate with whom no one had anything [to do.] Under these circumstances I w[ould] have to resign and could never hold my head again."

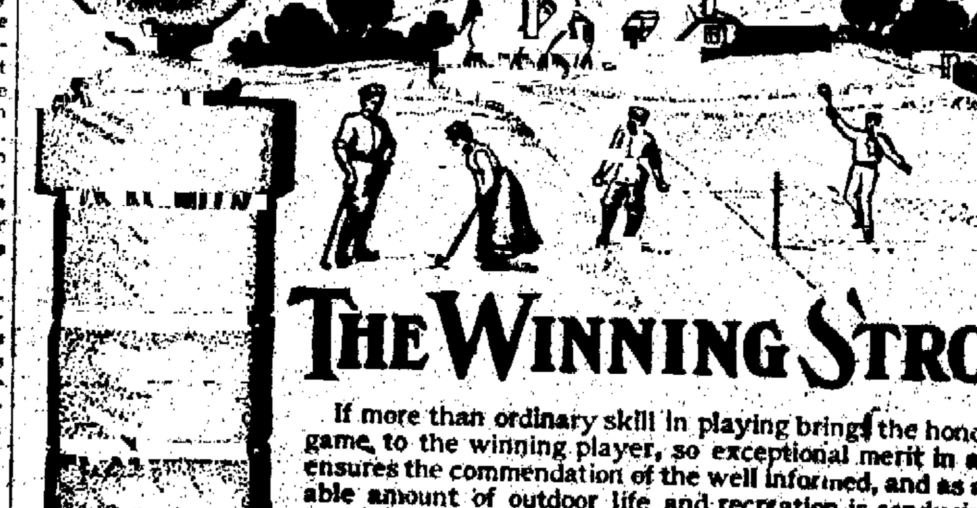

The prosecution then began its c[ross] examination.

The defendant was requested [to de]scribe "running" as Branch had c[on]ducted it toward him.

"I don't care to relate them," [said] Meriwether.

Meriwether then whispered to [the] judge advocate and the question [was] withdrawn. It was evident that [Meri]wether hesitated to mention c[ertain] things before the women of [whom] there were a number in the court [room.] "He then declared that he had been "ratty" but had unfairly ac[quired] the reputation.

At the end of Meriwether's test[imony] the defense announced that it closed its defense.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all-important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating, or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

REV. J. H. FRANKLIN CALLED TO FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

At a meeting of the congregation of the First Baptist church last evening it was unanimously decided to call the Rev. J. H. Franklin of Kansas City, Mo., to the pastorate of the church to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Rev. Edward Braislin last September. Although it is not definitely known whether or not Dr. Franklin will accept the call, the congregation feels confident that he will and that he will assume his sacred office January 1.

The Rev. Mr. Franklin is not unknown in Colorado. A number of years ago he had charge of the pulpits of Baptist churches at Leadville and Cripple Creek, and a month ago he preached at the First Baptist church of this city. His sermon at this time was so strong and earnest that the congregation immediately decided to call him for their pulpit.

Dr. Franklin was graduated from the Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and is about 35 years of age. He is married but has no children. He is now superintendent of missionary work of the Baptist church in the west and has charge of missions in 1,400 churches.

NO JOLTS ON STREET CARS

JOINTS OF TRACK ON NEW COSTILLA LINE TO BE WELDED.

INTERURBAN COMPANY DECIDES TO USE INVENTION OF GERMAN SCIENTIST—TESTS IN DENVER.

When the new Costilla street line is built by the Colorado Springs & Interurban Railway company there will be none of the monkey-on-a-trapeze antics by the passengers, no back-breaking jolting of the rolling stock. The reason for this is that the joints in the track will be welded together, making a continuous rail.

Dr. D. H. Rice, vice-president, and B. M. Lathrop, general superintendent of the Colorado Springs & Interurban Railway company, returned yesterday morning from Denver where they witnessed tests of a process for welding steel rails. So successful were experiments that announcement has been made that the process will be used in the construction of the Costilla street line.

Dr. Hans Goldschmidt, of Essen Ruhr, Germany, has discovered a process of blending iron oxides and aluminum in such a manner that when they are ignited they form a heated element which welds steel so perfectly that one cannot find the joint with a microscope. The experiment in Denver consisted of taking a section of the tramway track, from which the fish plate had been removed, eliminating all the moisture from the rail by applying a blow torch, packing it into a mould over which the crucible filled with the oxides and aluminum had been placed, and igniting the latter with a match applied to a teaspoonful of flash powder. In a moment the molten mass covered the piece of disjointed track. Less than a quarter of an hour was required to uncover, scrape off the rough edges and declare the welded track ready for business. It is estimated the welding of the joints will cost the company something like $4.50 a joint.

"We probably will use the new system first on the Costilla street line," said Superintendent Lathrop. "It not only does away with the wear and tear on equipment and rails, from bumping over the low joints, but establishes a continuous circuit for the return of the current to the power house. Under the present system, when the rails are connected with fish plates, we form this circuit by establishing a copper connection between the rails. The Goldschmidt system makes a marked saving in power, as when the return circuit is inadequate the machinery on the cars does not get the full force of the current."

John Doe X His Mark

A man's mark is his honor. It stands for him and he stands for it. It's the old Saxon way of signifying good intentions.

The right to be protected in the exclusive use of a trade mark has been long recognized by the common law and enforced by the chancery courts of England and this country.

The Government puts its mark on a bond to give it value.

The NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY puts its trade mark in red and white on each end of a package of biscuit, crackers or wafers to distinguish these products and to guarantee the quality; and it does.

To comprehend more clearly the real value of this trade mark, try a package of either ZU ZU GINGER SNAPS, SOCIAL TEA BISCUIT or GRAHAM CRACKERS.

TONS OF FOOD FOR THE POOR

CITY SCHOOL CHILDREN GIVE IMMENSE QUANTITIES OF SUPPLIES TO THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

As a result of the efforts of the Associated Charities, the Elks club and the teachers in the public schools, the poor of Colorado Springs will be treated to a Thanksgiving dinner today. The school children of Colorado Springs were requested to bring food, money or clothing, and when the little folks returned to school yesterday afternoon the packages they brought with them were piled into wagons and hauled to the Associated Charities, from where they will be distributed. It required two wagons to carry the donations from the [illegible] schools while each of the other schools contributed a wagonload each. About [illegible] packages were sent to the Associated Charities from other sources. There was an abundance of fruit, bread, canned goods, vegetables, flour, candy and other delicacies to supply all the needy people that the committees could [illegible]. J. G. Dern of the Dern Tea and Coffee company sent fifty pounds of coffee to the headquarters yesterday, and this will be divided in half pound packages.

After a short program, the schools were closed yesterday and will remain closed until Monday.

INJURIES ARE MYSTERIOUS

D. & R. G. CAR INSPECTOR FOUND BADLY CUT AND HALF UNCONSCIOUS IN A SHACK.

Mystery attaches to injuries received by L. M. Maxwell of 2901 North Cascade avenue, a car inspector in the D. & G. yards, who lies in St. Francis hospital.

Mr. Maxwell left the baggage room of the D. & R. G. station at 6:25 o'clock Tuesday night. At 7:30 o'clock he was found in a shack across the yard tracks, in a semi-conscious condition, with a scalp wound in the back of his head, a cut behind his left ear and a contusion over the left eye. After being found Maxwell was taken to the office of Dr. Forrest Estill, where his wounds were treated, and he was then removed to St. Francis hospital.

Whether Maxwell was slugged or knocked down by a train is a puzzle. He says the last he remembers was when he left the baggage room and started around the rear end of train No. 14, which was standing in the yards. He had no money on his person and his watch remained in his pocket, which may be taken as evidence disposing of the robbery theory. He says he has no enemies who would strike him down, and he has no recollection of being struck by a train or an engine. His forehead and face were cut and scratched by cinders, which indicates that he struck the ground face downward, but the cuts on the back of his head are unexplainable. His injuries will not prove serious.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CHAIR

SUDDEN ATTACK OF HEART DISEASE CAUSED DEATH OF FURRIER IN AIKEN'S MUSEUM.

A sudden attack of heart disease caused the death of Theodore F. Voss, a furrier in the employ of Aiken's museum, 14 East Pike's avenue, at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Voss was born in Germany and grew up in his father's shop, where he learned the furrier's trade. After coming to this country he was at the head of Günther's repair shops in New York city for many years and worked in Denver and Cheyenne, Wyo., before coming to Colorado Springs.

He came from his home near the Garden of the Gods on the 7:15 o'clock car yesterday morning. F. E. Cottrall, an employe of W. H. Wise, met him as he alighted from the car and accompanied him to his place of business. Voss entered the store and took off his cap and gloves, laying them on a work bench. Ten minutes later Mrs. Hallie Belding, another employe of Mr. Aiken's, found Voss seated in a chair—dead. Coroner Law decided an inquest was unnecessary.

Surviving Mr. Voss are his widow, Josephine F. Voss, and one daughter, aged 13 years, who is a student in the Colorado City schools. Mr. Voss had several other children, but their whereabouts are unknown.

CUT SPOUSE WITH A BUTCHER KNIFE

CHARGE MADE BY HUSBAND IN SWEARING OUT WARRANTS FOR MRS. DELFI HUDSON.

Warrants for the arrest of Mrs. Delfi D. Hudson, charging her with assault with a deadly weapon and assault with intent to kill, were sworn out by her husband in Justice O. R. Dunnington's court yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hudson is 60 years of age, being his wife's senior by several years. It is said that they have been on poor terms for some time and that yesterday morning she attacked him with a butcher knife, cutting a long and deep gash on his head. He bled profusely and after the wound was dressed reported to the justice of the peace.

Mrs. Hudson was arrested by the police last night and was placed under bond in the sum of $100.

SUICIDE CAUSED BY DESPONDENCY

HUSBAND OF CLAIRVOYANT TAKES HIS LIFE BY DRINKING CARBOLIC ACID—TOOK WIFE'S NAME.

D. F. McConnaghie, who when married in Lincoln, Neb., five years ago took his wife's name of Sampson, committed suicide in his room at 26 East Pike's Peak avenue yesterday morning at 4 o'clock by drinking carbolic acid. Mr. McConnaghie, or Sampson, was in ill health and his rash deed is attributed to despondency over his inability to engage in business activity. His wife is a clairvoyant and states that she had been warned by intuition for two weeks [illegible] that her husband might seek to destroy himself. When he drank the poison she ran out into the bitter cold [illegible] streets in her night clothing seeking aid. She met a policeman, who summoned Dr. John H. Ferguson, but the man was dead when the physician arrived ten minutes after he was called. The remains will be taken to Lincoln, today by Mrs. McConnaghie.

MASTERSON GETS A $250 VERDICT

WINS SECOND SUIT AGAINST THOMAS F. BURNS FOR SALARY—MAKES TOTAL OF $1,500.

Howard Masterson won his suit in the county court against the Colorado Springs Athletic association. The jury yesterday afternoon brought in a verdict in Masterson's favor for $250. In his suit against Thomas Burns for salary alleged to be due him for services rendered the local baseball team, Mr. Masterson found the amount awarded him to be cut down by the jury on the grounds that for a portion of his services the Athletic association was responsible. He then filed the suit which terminated yesterday. He was awarded $1,250 against Burns in his former suit.

Among the documents filed in district court yesterday was a motion by the trustees of the Stratton estate for an order to strike from the files the bill of exceptions filed by Leslie W. Popejoy, who is suing the estate for a large share thereof.

The Story & Clark Piano company filed suit against the George E. Bird Piano company to recover the sum of $125 with accrued interest.

The defendants, Arthur Willett and the Protective Investment company, in the case of the Acorn Gold Mining company et al. versus S. A. Phipps et al., have moved for a more specific complaint.

In the case of Sidney W. French versus the United States Reduction and Refining company and James H. Foster, the company filed a separate answer.

Judge Lewis will hear motions December 18, on which date he wishes to finish the motion business before him.

G. H. LOGAN IS C. & S. COMMERCIAL AGENT

"G. H. Logan, commercial agent, Colorado Springs," was a noticeable feature of new official time-tables of the Colorado & Southern Railway company which were sent to this city yesterday. The official announcement that Mr. Logan would take this position confirms the report to this effect printed in The Gazette yesterday.

Dangers of a Cold.

It is agreed by all the best and most [illegible] physicians that at this season of the year one of the most unfailing preventives against contagious diseases, such as diphtheria, scarlet fever and even consumption, is to avoid colds, or having contracted them, to combat them assiduously and intelligently. To prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of these diseases, [illegible] the safest treatment for a cold is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure and is equally valuable for children and adults. It has become famous for its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

The annual meeting of the Royal Arcanum for the election of officers will be held at the K. of P. hall on December 5. A good attendance is expected.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION GIVEN BY MRS. BONELL

The receptions given by Mrs. B. W. Bonell are always pleasantly anticipated and the one given at her home on Canon avenue yesterday afternoon was a brilliant affair. Yellow chrysanthemums were everywhere, and yellow shades on candelabrums with the sheaves of yellow grain grouped in the corners of the rooms reminded the guests that Thanksgiving was here.

Misses Gene Ogilbee and Julia Mullenhower met the guests at the door, while Mrs. C. Louis Smith and Miss Mattie Farrier assisted the hostess in receiving in the dining room. Mrs. William Smiley and Mrs. William Bruckhurst poured the first hour and Mrs. Emmerson and Mrs. D. H. Rupp the second hour. Assisting in serving were Misses Hattie Leonard and Gladys Laycock. Sherbet was served in the library by Mrs. William Snyder and Miss Ann Hulburt.

The guest list included Mrs. J. W. Neely, Mrs. J. B. Wheeler, Mrs. Reichmuth, Mrs. Clara Phiefer, Mrs. James, Mrs. Arthur James, Mrs. E. E. Nichols, Mrs. D. H. Rupp, Mrs. Charles Reubendale, Mrs. H. THANKSGIVING DAY.

THIS is the day of Thanksgiving; the day set apart in the long, long ago as an occasion for the people to count their blessings and rejoice in them. In these practical times it is only natural that the holiday should become more and more an occasion of feasting and general celebration, and that its more significant devotional aspect should gradually be lost sight of. The Pilgrim Fathers and their descendants of a half-dozen generations spent the day in a spirit of reverence, attending long-drawn-out church services, which, to moderns, would doubtless be very tiresome. True, the awful solemnity was relieved by the bountiful Thanksgiving dinner—a dinner the traditions of which still survive—but if the stories that come down to us from those days are to be credited, the whirligig of time has wrought some marvelous changes in the Thanksgiving holiday.

We degenerate inheritors of the ancient tradition eat turkey and cranberry sauce, mince and pumpkin pie, puddings and sweetmeats and all the other good things that go to make up the feast, and of course we eat entirely too much. But there the resemblance to the Thanksgiving of earlier generations ends. We spare precious little time for the actual business of returning thanks, particularly when it involves a lengthy church service. Instead, we rush off to the football field to strain our vocal cords and lay in a supply of colds, sore throat and perhaps pneumonia, sufficient to last till New Year's. Old-fashioned people may deplore the change in the manner of observing the day, but they must admit that it is more in keeping with the spirit of the times.

The President in his annual proclamation has recounted some of the reasons why we, as a people, should return thanks to the Giver of All Good, and the Governors of the various states have also called these things to public attention. This formality has its uses, for in times of prosperity as well as of adversity we are liable to forget the magnitude of our blessings. The man who has one small misfortune is pretty sure to think and talk about it more than he does about all his blessings put together. But Thanksgiving Day is a time when the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" should be put out of mind, and only the good things of life remembered. It is surprising, too, when we try to find how many of these good things each of our lives holds. All of us are sharing in one way or another in the superabundant national prosperity. All of us are reaping the benefits which spring from the industrial peace everywhere prevalent in the state; from the thriving condition of agriculture and mining, from the stimulus given to local business by an exceptionally prosperous tourist season.

But some have prospered in greater degree than others, and it is as true now as it was nineteen hundred years ago that "the poor always ye have with you." Thanksgiving Day would be a hollow mockery if it brought no cheer to the unfortunate. In Colorado Springs this class is exceptionally well looked after, thanks to the philanthropy of several public-spirited organizations, but there is always a chance for the individual who desires to do good to find some worthy person or family whose holiday might be brightened by a little kindly attention.

"We live in easier and more plentiful times than our forefathers, the men who, with rugged strength, faced the rugged days; and yet the dangers to national life are quite as great now as at any previous time in our history. . . . We are not threatened by foes from without. The foes from whom we should pray to be delivered are our passions, appetites and follies; and against these there is always need that we should wage war."

This sounds so characteristic of President Roosevelt that it is hardly necessary to explain that it is an extract from his Thanksgiving proclamation. Neither is it necessary to explain what the "dangers to national life" are, for the people are not oblivious to the real significance of corrupt politics, corrupt finance, and graft in the thousand and one forms in which it appears. These dangers are real, and we may well be thankful that the whole nation is aroused to the vital importance of crushing them out before they assume more formidable proportions. Here in Colorado Springs the demand for more honest and efficient government, which is being heard everywhere throughout the country, has been answered, and among the blessings for which we are today thankful may be counted the fact that at last laws which had long been ignored are now enforced. And this is by no means the least of our reasons for thankfulness.

TO IMPROVE COLORADO AVENUE.

COLORADO AVENUE, the main highway between Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou, is seen by thousands of tourists every year. Even the visitor who has only a few hours to spend in this vicinity usually rides to Manitou, and very often his only impressions of the three cities at the foot of the Peak are formed from this trip. For this reason it is particularly desirable that Colorado Avenue be beautified in every manner possible, and this is what the Horticultural Society purposes to do, or to aid in doing.

While the rest of the city has been talking about building sidewalks, the people of the West Side have been building them, and Colorado Avenue now has uniform and continuous cement walks clear to Colorado City. People who are public-spirited enough to make such improvements of their own volition may be depended upon to make others, especially when the cost of the new improvements will be small. This is probably why the Horticultural Society has decided to co-operate with the property-owners. Flowers will be planted, lawns improved, unsightly buildings hidden with vines, and vacant lots now filled with weeds will be converted into grass plats. The people of the West Side will have the advice of expert gardeners, and the improvements will be made according to a definite plan.

Blessings on the Horticultural Society, for this is the sort of public spirit that counts. Colorado Springs is a beautiful city, but it can be made ten times more beautiful by intelligent, concerted effort, such as this organization is putting forth. The men and women who make up the membership of the Society contribute their time and money to the work, and receive no return except the pleasure which comes from helping make this a sightlier, cleaner, brighter and better city. The spirit of improvement is contagious. One man "fixes up" his property, and his neighbor, seeing its beauty, resolves to do likewise. By taking advantage of this trait the Horticultural Society is likely to secure practical results of the greatest value within a year or two, and the people of Colorado Springs will be the beneficiaries.

PATTERSON FINED.

THE Patterson contempt case reached its climax yesterday when the state Supreme Court decided the senior Senator to be in contempt of court for printing certain cartoons and editorials in his two newspapers, and fined him $1,000. The court directed that Patterson be committed to jail until the fine should be paid, but subsequently ordered a stay of execution for sixty days, pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. The Senator, as was to be expected, informed the court that he would exercise his constitutional right as a United States Senator to claim exemption from arrest while Congress is in session.

The liberty of the press is a precious right which no newspaper in the land would wish to have curtailed, and because of its transcendant importance, it is a right which must not be abused. There is a limit beyond which criticism can not pass without violating every canon of decency, and there are some things which by common consent may not be made the subject of newspaper criticism at all. The dignity of the courts must at all times be maintained, and while the law does not exempt them from sane and reasonable criticism, it does protect them from vicious attacks designed to bring them into public contempt and disrepute.

There is not much room for doubt that Senator Patterson went beyond the bounds of propriety, even of decency, in his published criticisms of the Colorado Supreme Court last winter. If he was displeased with the court's decisions in the election fraud cases, or in any other cases, he had a perfect right to express his disapproval in his newspapers in a temperate manner, but he most emphatically had no right to take advantage of his position as a publisher and editor to foster a spirit of contempt for the court on the part of the public. This has been The Gazette's attitude toward the case from the beginning, and we would still be of that opinion if the decision of yesterday had been in Senator Patterson's favor.

When it is remembered that he is a lawyer with an established position in the forefront of the Colorado bar, Senator Patterson's conduct is all the more reprehensible. As an attorney he appeared before the Supreme Court in its hearing of the election contempt cases and argued the cause of his clients. He threatened, insinuated, bullyragged, and ranted in a way which most respectable lawyers would have disdained to adopt, even if they had dared. He was defeated, and then, instead of remaining silent, he took advantage of his ownership of two newspapers to vent his wrath against the court. In editorials, news matter and cartoons he abused and villified the highest judicial body in the state, imputed to it the basest motives and tried to convince the public that it was a sort of judicial market place where final decisions were rendered in accordance with the wishes of the highest bidder.

Senator Patterson has been seeking the martyr's crown for a long time and now, no doubt, he considers it cheaply purchased at the price of a one-thousand-dollar fine. If the Federal Supreme Court saves him he will be a hero; if the decision of the state Supreme Court stands he will be a ten times greater hero. In any event the people of Colorado will have the wail of the martyr dinned into their ears from now until nobody knows when. After all, this is the most unpleasant thing about the whole affair.

The naval demonstration against the perfidious Moslem comes just at the right season. All over the country the newspaper paragraphers are squeezing another laugh out of the veteran joke about the Powers carving up Turkey for their Thanksgiving dinner.

If the Isle of Pines had been able to produce a political or financial graft scandal perhaps it would have been more successful in breaking into the American Union. As things stand at present, the Isle of Pines will have to "go get a reputation."

President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving turkey weighs 41 pounds. Divided up among the big and little Roosevelts, this is five pounds, two ounces of turkey apiece. It seems probable that the family doctor will be needed at the White House tomorrow.

If you, gentle reader, are a policy holder in the Mutual Life Insurance Company, you have reason to be doubly thankful today. President McCurdy has climbed gracefully down from the perch.

The deep, dense silence which envelops Mr. Henry M. Whitney, of Massachusetts, indicates that the country is soon to be favored with another "statement in explanation of my course."

Amid the general festivity and rejoicing of the day, let us pause to shed a tear of sympathy for our late lamented friend, Mr. T. Gobbler, who died to make us happy.

The outside world will probably be glad of the Russian telegraphers' strike if it brings about a temporary cessation of the gory news from the Czar's stricken realm.

It should be distinctly understood that President McCurdy wasn't forced to resign. Oh, no! He is simply doing it in order to take a well-earned rest.

The farther the insurance investigation proceeds the more profound becomes our admiration for Jimmie Hyde. Jimmie is the lad who set off the fireworks.

The Kaiser seems to be about the only friend the Sultan has left, and it isn't a friendship based on love, either.

The skeleton at the feast—the turkey after little Johnnie has passed his plate three times for more.

Perhaps, when Premier Balfour hears about President McCurdy, he will decide to do likewise.

Well, the weather man sent us good football weather for Thanksgiving, anyway.

REVISITING ENGLAND

Some of the Curious Changes Noticed by an American—British Willing to Give American Things a Trial.

IT WAS a rainy day in Brighton, a cold, dismal, marrow-chilling day, such an abominable cold day that I should have been glad to say with Tommy Atkins: "The blasted English drizzle wakes the fever in my bones." But a day like that didn't even remotely suggest fever. It was altogether too clammy.

I was strolling along the wet pavements of Queen's road and wishing the English summer more tolerable when of a sudden my eye lighted on a placard in a restaurant window: "A New Departure! American Soda Fountain!! Try Our American Iced Drinks!!!" At the top of the placard the union jack and the Stars and Stripes were locked in a fond embrace.

I went in—not for an "iced drink," but for a chance to look at an American soda fountain and think how nice and warm my native land would feel. As it was time for luncheon, I ordered a chop and waited. Presently I looked up and beheld a sight. At the next table to mine sat an Englishman eating a luncheon of cold tongue and sliced cucumber, while beside his plate stood an American soda glass filled with chocolate ice-cream soda, which he had stirred with his spoon till it had become a sort of polar soup and which, between mouthfuls, he was sipping through a straw. Fiala, I'm sure, never felt half so cold as I did watching that Englishman.

I knew, of course, that the English were a hot-blooded race. I had often heard British travelers scold about overheated American houses, complaining of the "suffocating temperature of seventy." A little later, when England got really rather warm for a few days, I read an editorial in a London paper calling upon the entire British nation to knock off work and lie down flat. "It's a perfect outrage," shrieked the editorial, "to expect human beings to go about their business with the mercury at eighty!"

But none of these things could make me believe that my Brighton ice-cream-soda bibber drank ice-cream soda with a cold luncheon on a cold day because he liked it. No, he was putting on the Yankee.

As I hadn't been in England for eleven years, and as I had only just arrived from France, I perceived that things had begun to change in England, that the American soda-fountain was probably not the only "new departure" since my former visit, and that quite possibly England might be putting on the Yankee in a good many other ways that I should notice if I kept my eyes open during the month I was to spend upon John Bull's island. And then I remembered that I had seen a Pullman car in the train that met our channel steamer at Newhaven—not a full-grown American Pullman, but a rather respectable reduced copy adapted to British railway requirements. I had seen no such thing during my former visit.

In London I sat me down at the barber's, and while my hair was being trimmed I said to that affable artist, "Why don't you introduce American chairs?" "Sir," he replied, "you're in one!" And so I was, though you wouldn't have known it. The barber had cut off its legs, detached the footrest, and otherwise anglicized it, till it was as British as William Waldorf Astor. He told me that a great many English barbers had adopted the American chairs, but that they had not been a success. "But," said I, "they save you lots of trouble; you don't have to bend over." To this he rejoined, "Is it any harder to bend over than to work with both arms held up in the air?" Then he added, "The American footrest got in our way. An English barber wants to go all round his man." Here, then, was a sincere effort on the part of our British "cousins" to give American institutions a fair trial. If they didn't like them after that, we certainly hadn't much ground for complaint.

Leaving the barber's I dropped in at a drug store—you may say "drug store" in England now and be as promptly understood as if you said "pharmaceutical chemist"—and while making a purchase I asked why the druggist didn't adopt the soda fountain. "I had one last year—a lot of druggists have had them—but it didn't pay and I gave it up. You won't find many left now." Aha! Then the Englishman and the Brighton restaurant was a long way behind the times; he wasn't so alarmingly up-to-date as he imagined. The soda fountain, like the American barber's chair, has been weighed in the British balances and found wanting. The knowing aren't caught by window placards calling it a new departure.

Americans often ask why the English don't borrow our checking system. That is simply because they did borrow it and it wouldn't work as well as the British system. Even now you may send your luggage—it's as safe to call it "baggage" in these days—ahead of you on holidays and during the weekend rush. But the use of brass checks in ordinary travel made trouble. There's a factor in English travel that we don't have to deal with, and that factor is the cab. The Briton goes straight from his car—you may say "car" now if you like—to his cab, stopping a moment on the way to pick out his luggage and turn it over to the porter, who trundles it after him. This is quicker and more convenient than giving a brass check to the cab man and letting him go back into the station to claim the luggage while you wait outside. Again our American methods were weighed in the British balances and found wanting.

The steel framed sky-scraper, however, has entered England to stay. It isn't so egregiously tall as with us, but it looks mountainous enough beside the five and six-story buildings that have until lately been the common thing in English cities. But here I restrain myself—I'm not going to describe the rebuilding of London. It's already been described some nine-and-sixty times too often.

And yet I can't leave London without touching upon two comparatively recent innovations that immensely impressed me. One was the prosperity of the east end. A year or so ago Professor Walter Wyckoff declared that the east end was no longer the capital of hunger, and people thought he had lost his wits. I myself thought so. I looked back to the horrible poverty I had seen there in 1894 while living in a college settlement in Whitechapel. I recalled the half-starved, hollow-cheeked, blear-eyed east enders in their frightful rags and tatters. I thought of Phil May's guttersnipes, whom I had known in real life; of his Mile End girls with their stringy bangs and dirty ostrich feathers. It seemed impossible that such a monstrously ludicrous and fantastically tragical East London could ever change. Well, a few weeks ago I went back to the east end, trod the Monkey's Mile a whole evening, and found everything changed. The reign of rags had ended, the reign of starched linen and unpatched boots had succeeded it. I could scarcely believe my eyes. I poked into back streets and alleys trying to find some trace of the old state of things. It wasn't there. And the change for the better isn't wholly due to Whitechapel Jews, great though their improvement has been; even out at Mile End, where the people are all English, you find similar evidence of prosperity. No doubt there is misery in the east end, lots and lots of misery, but it's a tremendous change from the misery that was there in the summer of 1894. And while a new east end plague-spot has established itself at Bethnal Green, its people are Continentals on their way up, not broken-spirited Britons on their way down.

The other thing I noticed in London was the new line of steamboats on the Thames. The line that was there eleven years before had been given up for a time and was now replaced by a service—save the mark!—of absolutely insane floating blunderbusses turned loose by the London County council and mismanaged by nobody in particular. They started when the spirit moved, arrived you couldn't tell when, skipped landing-places if they chose, spilt people overboard and ran into one another and the wharves and any available passing craft they could hit. I bought a ticket marked "London Bridge," but, there being no landing place of that name, I got summarily run away with and carried to Greenwich! It took half a day to get back. From all I can learn, the boats have been better managed since then; but as exhibit A of the British genius for "muddling through somehow" they couldn't have been better qualified to disgust and appall.

On the train out of London I met an English business man who opened his valise and showed me an American magazine called System. "There," he said, slapping the magazine on the back affectionately, "there is the thing I'm trying to make Englishmen read. It tells about American business methods just the things we English need; but if you'll believe me, sir, it's the hardest thing in the world to make English business men look into it. They won't touch it, they won't come near it." Then he went on to tell how the American method of card-cataloguing called forth the British rejoinder, "What if one of the cards should get lost?" He thought his countrymen passionately devoted to out-of-date ways and grotesque traditions. He added that even if here and there an employer tried to modernize his business his efforts were promptly tripped up by the labor unions. Those unions, he said, cling to the theory that the less work you do today, the more you'll have left to do tomorrow. He cited some amazingly preposterous cases of unionist tyranny. He hadn't a good word for the British workman—in fact, he told me he wasn't at all surprised at what befell a London friend of mine, who agonized five whole days while a paperhanger was papering a diminutive bedroom.

Now these were things I had read about time and again, but it was a bit of a shock to hear them proclaimed by a live Englishman right at my elbow. It was as if the Mosely report had suddenly donned tweeds and a bowler and begun to shout and gesticulate. And the man's very wrath was a surprise. Eleven years ago Englishmen took the situation quite comfortably; you couldn't have found such a fiery, rebuking prophet as this in the whole island. Today there's a new spirit; agitation has set in with a vengeance; and this noisy apostle of Americanism isn't by any means alone in his campaign. John Bull rubs his eyes, and begs for just another little nap, but there are those who will wake him up.

At Oxford I found a different sort of change. The colleges looked newer than they did eleven years ago. The restorer had been at work, replacing a crumbling slab here, a fallen pinnacle there, a weather-worn lintel over yonder. And in one of those lovely chapels I got a vivid reminder of a gentleman who had been kind to me during my previous visit—a reminder as painful as vivid. It was a beautiful vase set into the wall, with the inscription: "Here lie the ashes of Sir Edwin Arnold." I had seen hundreds on hundreds of tombs in Europe—seen them without other than the historical emotion that looks back wistfully into the past—but that vase had a new and tragical meaning, and Oxford itself came nearer than ever before.

Throughout my little journey I kept finding evidences of what had happened during the last few years. "V. R." on mail carts, post-boxes and police wagons had been changed to "E. R."—not always, though, and the dead Queen's initials looked at once strange and familiar. And everywhere I saw men wearing medals. A hotel porter was simply loaded with them. Soldiers had them by the half-dozen, even policemen had them. They were rewards for service in South Africa. Meanwhile, I observed that his majesty's troopers frequently went clad in khaki and still wore the broad-brimmed "Boer hat."

With the rest, I found that the annual—perhaps I should rather say the perennial—tide of American visitors had taught the English how to treat us. Ice water comes unbidden, our Yankee names for things are immediately understood, and when you absentmindedly ask for "a two-cent stamp" you get what you want without having to explain. But the most convincing little incident of all seemed to me the one I noticed in Liverpool on my way to the steamer. A bootblack was yelling, not "Polish! polish!" as of yore, but "shine!" That, I thought, was an even finer example of English Americanism than the London girls out on Hempstead Heath singing an American coon-song in cockney dialect:

"Me Annah Lydy, so good and true,
You are me byby, I'll do love you."

THANKSGIVING.

The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.—Jeremiah, viii. 20.

The voice of the prophet resounds through the house of Time. The eye of the prophet is keen, even to the hundredth generation. The Lamenter of Israel pierces the years and sees us, the upbuilders of a new regime, bending in gratitude to the God of the harvest. From the seats of the delivered he looks down on a people about to render to Heaven their thanks for peace and plenty. From a land flowing with milk and honey, and rich beyond words in all the products of earth, is about to ascend the incense of an annual prayer. The harvest is past, the summer is ended.

And we are not saved!

In the midst of plenty we may be poor, indeed. And as we bow with one accord to the Giver of All Good this week let us make our prayers not only a thanksgiving for the bounty with which we have been blessed, but a supplication for strength and courage to work with the weeds and swamps and deserts that still afflict the land.

For what does it profit if, at peace with all the world, we war among ourselves over stolen spoils? And where will our gladness have fled if, like the rich man whose ground brought forth plenteously and who said to his soul, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat drink and be merry!" We hear the decree indisputable:

"This night thy soul shall be required of thee!"

How is it if our fields are gold with grain and our morals corroded with materialism? How is it if our orchards bend to the ground with fruit and our heads tower with false pride! How is it if our mines yield plenteously of virgin metal and our eyes see in their product only the power of purchase! What though we build palaces for the body, if we content ourselves with hovels for the immortal soul!

Gratitude is a beautiful thing; almost as rare as it is good to see. But the gratitude that counts is that which is shown forth in some way deeper and more lasting than words. Prayers are well enough, but useless unless they be the accompaniment of practical effort. It is a fine sight to see a nation bow its head in thanksgiving, but it becomes a mere mockery if nothing more lasting than a fleeting Amen is offered up in return for all that has been given.

The thanksgiving worth while is that of a people truer to the ideals on which the government is founded and stronger in the prosecution of right and justice. That worthy of a people so blessed as we is the gradual extermination of false ideas and ideals in private life and the steady progress of honesty and fairness in the administration of government. When we can hold up our heads freer from stains of graft, and pray from hearts less contented with corruption, we shall indeed present to the nations evidence of our gratitude for the countless gifts of a never failing Providence.

And to God a thanksgiving acceptable in His sight.—Philadelphia North American.

KISSING IS HEALTHFUL.

With feelings of unmixed joy we chronicle the fact that a distinguished French physician has gone against his colleagues and actually stood up for kissing. Far from being harmful, it is wholesome. The mistletoe should be encouraged by enlightened practitioners all the year round. Kisses carry microbes, of course. So much the better says the amiable authority. The interchange of certain bacilli is a laudable and healthful practice. In kissing it is not so much the bad bacilli as the beneficent ones that are exchanged. These good bacteria as is well known are not only favorable, but essential to digestion. If we were to sterilize the inner man, completely ridding the ... with the black sheep ... of bacilli we should just ... by exchanging our friendly microbes we stimulate them. Kissing therefore is a natural therapeutic ... the physician concludes, and who knows but that some day the kissing cure will be ordered for dyspepsia by up to date physicians.—Chicago Argus.

Improvement in the Country Since Thanksgiving Day, 1865—Then the Nation Had Just Passed Through the Ordeal of the Civil War. There Are Some Flaws, of Course, but Uncle Sam Can Afford to Forget Them For One Day, Eat Turkey and Just Be Thankful.

By PAUL DANBY

THE celebration of Thanksgiving day 40 years ago, in 1865 was the first after the close of the Civil war.

There are many things about this country today with which even a good-natured person can find fault. But the contrast of the condition of the country as it was then and as it is now shows vast general improvement. Even an ill-natured person must admit that the 40 years have brought much for which we may all well be thankful. Taking Thanksgiving day, 1865, around the country as yet practically addressed to the problem of getting over the frightful struggle that had just ended and well-nigh disrupted it. Not only were the wounds of sectional ill feeling still open and inflamed but most of the industries of the great section were still practically prostrated.

The establishment of the country's credit was difficult always after a great war but all this after the Civil war was complicated by enormous inflation to which the currency had been subjected during the struggle undertaken.

The hospitals were still tenanted with maimed and diseased victims of the great contest. It was still hard to gather a considerable crowd of men that should not contain individuals who were without the full complement of arms and legs. Old, well-worn army blue overcoats were still a common sight.

There was still felt in the north the arrogance toward the south that the victor in a hardly won fight naturally feels toward the vanquished. There was still felt in the south the bitterness and resentment that are almost always felt toward the victor, by the vanquished.

There was little ill-feeling on the part of the men north or south, who had met in actual fighting, however. Though this may seem strange to some it was this very good feeling on the part of the ex-soldiers, north and south toward their late adversaries that even then was beginning to act as a unifying force that was doing the latter work of forging new and stronger bonds of union between the recently warring portions of the land.

Today—well even today there are irreconcilables, both north and south, but they are few in number, comparatively and actually—the country today is more closely united from the sectional viewpoint than it has ever been in all its history.

There are misunderstandings among Uncle Sam's children; some of them serious enough, in all conscience, but they are not sectional. Though the people of the United States are by no means of one mind in all things political today there are none who, having the desire to change the form of government or who think it would be a good thing for the country to be split in two.

And that is the one thing of all others that has been brought to the United States by the 40 years since Thanksgiving day, 1865, for which its citizens should be thankful.

Most important agencies in the new and stronger union which has come to the United States since 1865, have been furnished by the tremendously improved means of communication and transportation. Though plenty of criticism may be justly due to its management the present railroad system of the United States is something for which the whole country should be profoundly thankful.

Most folk accept it today as a matter of course. To the younger generation it seems like an institution that has always existed without which no matter how much fault may be found it is hard to see how the business of the country could get well go on. But while in 1865 there were about 50,000 miles of railroad there are more than four times as many today, or about 218,000, more than seven miles for every hundred square miles of territory.

The people of the old lands remember very well, there was no steel highway linking the east of the Atlantic with the coast of the Pacific. Then there were three ways by which one wishing to travel from New York or Boston or Washington to San Francisco or Portland could do so. Overland by a combination of rail to the Mississippi and stage coach, all horseback westward from the great river counties requiring many days by steamer or sailing ship around the Horn a voyage of months, or by steamer to the Isthmus of Panama (they called it Darien then) across on the Panama railroads and thence by steamer again up the coast to San Francisco.

It cost several hundred dollars to get from one side of the country to the other then. Now at the lowest rate, you may travel from one ocean to the other for $60 the highest rate unless you wish to go on a private or special car—a veritable palace on wheels—is $115.75. This includes sleeping car berth and meals.

But the mere opening of transportation across the continent isn't the only thing in that line which the 40 years since Thanksgiving 1865 have brought to the people of the country for which to be thankful.

There has been such an approach in uniformity of management that it is possible to travel from one coast to the other with only one change, though two and even three are necessary by some routes. Practically all the railroads now are of one gauge. Some minor lines, traversing remote and mountainous districts are still of the old narrow gauge but the standard four feet eight-inch gauge has long been adopted on all the lines of any consequence. The six-foot gauge then and long after used by the Erie, the old Atlantic & Great Western and other lines has disappeared.

This and the many inventions and improvements that have been devised and applied to railroading have made possible the present railroad freight rates and they as much as anything else more, perhaps have been the great factor in the phenomenally rapid development of the country in the last 40 years.

Don't lift your eyebrows in dissent at this statement. It is true that there are many inequalities in the various freight rate scales of today. It is true that these often work gross injustice and that the country as a whole wants them corrected and will undoubtedly have its will. But any man knowing the freight rates forty years ago and now will tell you that there has been a great reduction.

There is no space to dwell upon the wonderful extension of the telegraph since 1865, or the improved mail facilities of today compared with those of forty years ago. Yet volumes might be written upon these topics without telling the whole story since there has been as great improvement in our communications with the outside world as in our domestic mail and telegraphic systems. Forty years ago there was no Atlantic cable. Now there are several. We have cables also across the Pacific and can talk instantaneously to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Since 1865 the general material development of the country has been such as to transcend all ordinary human understanding.

The peopling of vast new mining fields whole areas of coal deposits many of them entirely unsuspected, have been found and developed since 1865. The enormously valuable deposits of copper in Montana have all been discovered and developed since 1865. Michigan's though known before then, have also been mainly developed inside of forty years. So have the great iron deposits of Michigan, the zinc deposits of Missouri and countless beds of mineral wealth of all sorts in the south and in the almost boundless trans-Mississippi regions.

Secretary Seward knew that there was almost fabulous treasure under the surface of what was called Russian America when he bought it from the czar's government, but the gold and silver and other mineral wealth of Alaska has practically all been found and developed within the last ten years. In forty years the addition from mineral sources alone to the wealth of the country has amounted to billions on the back of billions.

Petroleum was discovered before 1865 and the development of territory which yielded it was begun forty years ago but by far the greater part of that development has been accomplished since then.

Natural gas is a gift from nature which was practically undreamed of forty years ago. That the Standard Oil development has occurred practically within the same period is merely an incident which, however you may regard it does not affect the fact that the development of petroleum and natural gas have been of incalculable benefit to the country.

Along with all these things the area of cultivated land has been increased so that the wheat and corn and cotton and other crops of the present are enormously greater than they were in 1865. Manufactures of all sorts have increased enormously also the total for 1865 being worth rather more than two billions of dollars this year the total value of our manufactures will not be far from fifteen billions of dollars roughly estimating the figures from the census of 1900.

Stimulated by the extension and development of the railroads and in turn stimulating their development, intimately interlocked and independent with the growth of mining, agriculture and manufacturing there has been an unbelievable growth of cities and towns in the forty years that end today.

And, as on that day Uncle Sam, after a right good dinner of turkey and pumpkin pie and other standard Yankee viands contemplates the tremendous advance his settlements have made he may dwell in thought upon the fact that the total of the country's population has grown from about thirty-three and a half millions in 1865, to more than eighty millions in 1906.

Now these material good things are all well worth being grateful for, no other people on the green earth have so many reasons of the sort for thankfulness as the Americans, but there are other things that should not be forgotten in making up the sum of the country's gratitude today.

Many, though not all, of the great labor saving inventions, have been developed since 1865 this is especially true of agricultural machinery, and the like. The development of the sewing machine, a prior invention, has really taken place since 1865. The telephone and the electric light are much less than forty years old.

America's mode of living has advanced incalculably. Many of the comforts which three-quarters of the people enjoy today were luxuries unattainable by any but the favored few forty years ago. It would take a volume to tell of what forty years has done in that line, and for all of which we should all be thankful.

The healing art and surgery have made great strides. Many diseases dimly understood then are curable now. Even consumption has yielded to yield measurably, and because of the immense strides medicine has taken, the average of human life has risen appreciably since 1865, according to careful compilations from official vital statistics.

In the general raising of the level of intelligence, in the increase of schools, colleges and universities since 1865, the country perhaps has the greatest cause of all to be thankful.

In this respect the West has relatively more reason for gratitude than the East. While nearly all the great institutions of learning were then in the east, today almost every state has its great university besides several colleges and other creditable seats of advanced learning the Pacific coast being particularly strong in such foundations.

This is the best possible augury for the future of the Republic, since it insures a constantly rising level of general enlightenment, the basis upon which alone is essential to the continuance and advancement of a free government by and for a great and free people.

Today we can all afford to forget all causes for dissatisfaction with things as they are and spend the time in feasting and expressing heartfelt thanks for the good things the past forty years have given us.

The Great American Thanksgiving Bird

THE turkey is really and truly the American national bird. It originated first on this continent. The bird had never been heard of before Columbus discovered America.

The first settlers of North America found three species of wild turkey. Pioneers of New England and the north Atlantic coast found one variety, dark and dull colored. The birds were so numerous and fearless that they did not know enough to be afraid of man. Before the guns and traps of hungry white men, however, the wild turkey soon vanished till now there is none left. Some of these New England wild turkeys were caught and taken to old England, where they were domesticated, and in time their offspring became tame farm fowls that is, as tame as turkeys can be made.

Meantime in the southwestern part of North America another kind of wild turkey was found by the Spaniards who settled that part of our continent. This turkey had handsomer plumage than the northern ones. It is still found in the wild state and is called the Mexican turkey. The Mexican turkey has white tips on its tail feathers. The Spaniards fell on this turkey as the New England settler did on the northern and soon made it scarce. They also domesticated it and introduced it into Europe. The domestic turkey of Europe is probably descended from a mingling of the New England and Mexican breeds of wild turkey.

When the Spaniards first invaded Mexico and made war on the Aztecs they found the people of Montezuma had zoological gardens much like ours today. Wild turkeys were so abundant that the Aztecs caught them and fed them to the bears in the menagerie. From this Mexican wild turkey our common domestic fowl, known as the bronze turkey, is descended. The poultry rearers have brought it to such excellence that a large bronze turkey sometimes weighs over 40 pounds. One man—Mr. Vose of Rhode Island—has for many years sent a bronze turkey every Thanksgiving to the president of the United States.

The wild turkey of the Mexican variety is still found in the woods of the southern and southwestern parts of the United States. It is odd how the turkey got its name. It belongs to what naturalists call the meleagris family. But more than 400 years ago people somehow got it into their heads that this fowl originated in Turkey, so they called it "turkey," although it did not come from that country at all, but was found in North America. One variety, the most beautiful as to coloring, is a native of Yucatan and Honduras. It is called the Honduras turkey, and its plumage is as brilliant as that of a humming bird, showing much the same tints.

How the turkey came to be the particular fowl for Thanksgiving is a good story by itself. You have read of the hardships the first settlers of New England—those who landed on Plymouth rock—suffered, how they came near starving the first year and how the Indians, who had in the beginning been friendly and helpful, became dangerous and threatening. In the autumn of 1621 the fortune of the little colony was relieved, and the members held a religious service and also a feast afterward, to which they invited some of the Indians, to show the red men how well fed and generally well provided for the white people were. A day or two before that first Thanksgiving feast some of the pilgrim fathers who were good shots took their guns and killed great quantities of wild game, among which were many turkeys.

Although people have been trying to tame the turkey for three centuries, the female still hides her nest out in the wood. If she gets her own way and lays to it by winding, crooked ways, dodging now, in this direction, now that. On farms, in keeping the hen turkeys have to be watched so the place where they hide their nests can be discovered.

My grandmother was a famous turkey raiser. Early in the spring each year she would keep a sharp eye on her poultry, and some morning we would hear her say:

"That turkey hen is stealing her nest out. I'll have to watch her."

Then maybe for two or three days grandmother would be gone several hours of the forenoon. But she always traced Madam Turkey to her hidden nest. A turkey has not much sense. Her chicks are very delicate and must be kept out of the wet, or they will die, yet the old turkey goes trailing out with them through the dripping grass after a rain and in the early dew of the morning. For this reason farm people often have hens hatch turkey eggs.

Now that Bernard Shaw has come out with a roast on Sir Henry Irving and his work all that remains to be done to finish the fame of the great man is to have Alfred Austin write a poem about him.

FOR OLD THANKSGIVING!

Written for The Gazette by Ella Ross Conner

Where the oaks and walnuts shiver
In the breeze that sweeps the river,
And the last beds of yellow corn
Roll slowly up the lane
Where the apples' golden treasure
Fill the bin a overflowing measure,
And the pumpkin's sphere of promised sweets
Is safely housed again,

There ah there was Old Thanksgiving
Kept by hearts all warm and living
In the days when peace and plenty crowned
The happy smiling land
Sure no gold on earth could buy it—
That home scene of mirthful riot
When our father carved the turkey
For his young impatient band!

How the table gleamed with splendor
And with good things sweet and tender
How brightly beamed the round, blue eyes
That waited for the feast
And then love hallowed
By the faith, The Fathers followed
And we gathered round that heaped-up board,

Just as they did 'down east,
There our mother, fair and stately
Busy housewife, smiled sedately
And at that glance of vanished love
Our eyes began to fill
To a last "good-night's" reposing
The evening star began to rise
Behind the wooded hill!

And since then that star's clear shining
Brings a thought for hearts repining,
Could so much of love unselfish—love undying—ever cease?
All our hearts go forth to find her!
She that left this void behind her
Where in some unknown reunion
She hath found sweet joy and peace

So farewell dear Old Thanksgiving,
With thy dream of dead and living,
Where the river flows on gently
And the leaves crisp 'neath our feet
Where the corn is newly gathered
And the cattle safely sheltered
There the evening star is shining
With its [illegible] glad and sweet.

And ALBERT PHILIPP,
APPELLANTS,
Vs.
THE COLORADO FUEL AND IRON COMPANY,
APPELLEE.

Now on the 21st day of October, A. D. 1905, the same being one of the regular juridical days of the September term, A. D. 1905, of said District Court, come the above named appellants and present to said Court their statement, wherein said appellants pray that an appeal to the Supreme Court of Colorado be allowed to them against the appellee above named in the above entitled matter, on the examination of which statement said Court doth find that said statement is in accordance with the statements of claim filed by said appellee, as provided by law.

It is therefore considered, ordered and adjudged by said Court that said statement is approved, and that the appeal prayed for by said appellants is allowed; and that the names of the appellants and appellee are as above shown, and that the names of the ditches and reservoirs claimed by the parties, appellant and appellee, as shown by their several statements of claim filed as provided by law, are as follows, to-wit:

The name of the ditch claimed by said appellant The Canon City Hydraulic and Irrigating Ditch Company, is "The Canon City Hydraulic and Irrigating Ditch," numbered 17 in the decree heretofore rendered by by the District Court in and for the County of Fremont and State of Colorado, in the matter of Priorities of Water Rights in Water District No. 12.

And the name of the ditch claimed by said appellant The Canon City and Oil Creek Ditch Company, is "The Canon City and Oil Creek Ditch," numbered 20 in said decree in said Water District No. 12.

And the name of the ditch claimed by said appellant The Fruitland Water Company, is "The Fruitland Ditch," which said ditch is really a portion of said The Canon City and Oil Creek Ditch, and derives its water from said The Canon City and Oil Creek Ditch, under and by virtue of the ownership of stock in said The Canon City and Oil Creek Ditch Company.

And the name of the ditch claimed by said appellant The South Canon Ditch Company, is stated in its statement on file in the office of the Clerk of said District Court within and for said County of Fremont, as "The South Canon Ditch Company's Ditch," but is named "The South Canon Ditch," and numbered 22 in said decree in said Water District No. 12.

And the name of the ditch claimed by said appellant The Lincoln Park Crooked Ditch Company, is "The Lincoln Park Crooked Ditch," which is really a portion of the South Canon Ditch, and derives its water under and by virtue of priorities decreed to said The South Canon Ditch.

And the ditch claimed by said appellant The Lincoln Park Pump Ditch Company, is named "The Lincoln Park Pump Ditch," and is a portion of said The South Canon Ditch, and derives its water through and by virtue of priorities decreed to said The South Canon Ditch Company.

And the names of the ditches and reservoirs claimed by appellant The Park Center Land and Water Company are:

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Ditch.

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number One (1).

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number Two (2).

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number Three (3).

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number Five (5).

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number Eight (8).

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number Ten (10).

The Park Center Land and Water Company's Reservoir Number Eleven (11), which are numbered 417 in said Water District No. 12, under and by virtue of a supplemental decree of said District Court within and for Fremont County, Colorado, made and entered of record on August 25th, A. D. 1903.

And that said appellant The Board of County Commissioners of the County of Fremont, claims an undivided quarter of the Wafford Ditch numbered 21 in said original decree in said Water District No. 12;

And said appellant, Albert Philipp, claims an undivided half interest in the Camblin Ditch numbered 120 in said decree in said Water District No. 12.

And the name of the ditch which is claimed by said appellee is "The Arkansas Valley Ditch";

And that the amount of the appeal bond be and is hereby fixed at Five Hundred Dollars, which appeal bond shall be executed and approved, and shall be conditioned as provided by law within thirty days, and that ninety days be allowed in which to file bill of exceptions. The amount of bond has been fixed upon concession of appellants that this appeal does not operate as a supersedeas.

N. WALTER DIXON,
Judge.

State of Colorado,
County of Pueblo, ss.

I, L. B. Strait, Clerk of the District Court within and for said County, in the Tenth Judicial District of the State aforesaid, do hereby certify the above and foregoing to be a true, perfect and complete copy of an order made and entered of record in a certain cause lately pending in said Court, wherein The Canon City Hydraulic and Irrigating Ditch Company, et al, are appellants, and The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company are appellees.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Court at Pueblo, in said County, this 23rd day of October, A. D. 1905.

STATEHOOD BILLS ARE TO BE PUSHED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The strongest effort yet made in the direction of securing the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as a state is under way, and the statehood advocates propose that nothing will be left undone by congress.

Enormous petitions will be presented in both houses, with all the signatures that could be obtained.

In New Mexico, the movement is under the direction of the New Mexico Non-partisan Joint Statehood league, an organization of which former Delegate B. S. Rodey is secretary. This league extends to Arizona and petitions from that territory will also be presented to congress. Mr. Rodey and other men, who are not in official life, will be in Washington a portion of the winter, in the interests of the statehood bill. Senator Beveridge, chairman of the senate committee on territories, will introduce and press the joint statehood bill as early as possible, in order to get it out of the way of other important legislative business. Friends of the movement expressed the belief that the bill, which came so near being passed at the last session, providing for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, as one state, and New Mexico and Arizona as another, is very likely to receive consideration early in the session.

PLACING THE BLAME.

John Philip Sousa was condemning the voice of a comic opera comedian.

"It is such a voice," he said, smiling, as belonged to a young man whom I knew in my boyhood days in Washington.

"One night at a men's party, this young man sang a solo. It was execrable. In the midst of the hideous racket, bluff old Squire Baer entered.

"Squire Baer sat down and folded his hands on the knob of his stout stick. He waited patiently till the young man had finished. Then he said to him:

"'Well, boy, I don't blame you. You did your best. But if I knew the man who asked you to sing, I'd crack him over the head with this club.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels, it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S DIVERSION.

Lawmaking is to be a diversion of fashionable women in Washington this winter. Mrs. Roosevelt may be called the pioneer of this movement, though the wife of the French ambassador, Mme. Jusserand, and several other women in the diplomatic corps have added to its popularity. When Mrs. Roosevelt receives the women of the cabinet circle for the weekly boudoir conference she works on a piece of flimsy lace while important affairs of the next social season are discussed. Whenever a president's wife receives an intimate friend in the sunny western alcove on the second floor of the White house, which is her special preserve, she makes her lace chats stops long enough to take a cup of tea and begins at her lace again.

Emperor William was recently photographed again. His latest posing was for a set of official portraits of himself in full regimentals, and something like two dozen different attitudes were assumed.

ACACIA COMPANY SUES THE FINDLEY FOR A LARGE SUM

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—It is alleged in a complaint filed in the district court today that the Findley Consolidated Gold Mining company entered the Burns claim and removed ore worth $10,000 belonging to the Acacia company. Suit is entitled the Acacia Gold Mining company, vs. the Findley Consolidated Gold Mining company, and is brought to recover $10,000 and to regain possession of the premises. At what depth the ore was removed is not stated in the complaint.

That part of the Findley estate known as the Shurtloff abuts the Burns on the south. Large ore bodies have been developed in the Shurtloff, one of them 30 feet wide and several times as long, on several levels above the 1,100 foot point. It has been told that the Shurtloff shoots ended near or at the Burns line, but hopers who are sinking on the Burns have other views and back them in the expenditure of several thousand for apparatus and explorations. It was about the time that the denial was made of the shoots' obstruction into Burns ground that Acacia stock advanced sharply and eventually doubled in price. The higher price has been well maintained. It is believed that the point of alleged extraction from the Shurtloff which the Acacia company has in mind was at a depth of 700 or 800 feet. The Exposition Mining and Leasing company, lessee of this part of the Burns, has sunk 40 feet. Sinking has been rapidly done and will continue to the 500-foot point where it is generally believed a fortune awaits them.

NEW GOLD FIELDS TO RIVAL KLONDIKE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 29.—Great excitement prevails in the gold fields bordering on the straits of Magellan. Many companies have been formed and there has been a great opening of the fields and washeries. The territory promises to be a second Klondike.

TO RESUME OPERATIONS ON THE NORTH FORK

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—Operations have been resumed on the North Fork claim of the Empire State Gold Mining and Tunnel company, situated near the Pride of Cripple Creek, Home and others on Ironclad hill, by the Omaha Leasing company, after a few weeks of interruption. A depth of 160 feet has been attained. Sinking will be continued until the 300-foot point is reached. Ore of a good quality in a narrow body was cut at 80 feet. It will be sought at the 300-foot depth where it is likely to be much wider.

PAY ROCK COMPANY INSTALLS NEW PLANT

Special to The Telegraph.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—Installation of a plant including hoists, boilers and compressors, has been completed by the Pay Rock Gold Mining company, lessee of the Pay Rock claim of Tenderfoot hill. On the first level a wide body of low grade ore was opened by predecessors. This body will be sought by crosscut at a depth of 200 feet. If its quality is not up to expectations the shaft will be continued to the 400-foot point where lateral prospection will be resumed.

AILEEN CLAIM IS YIELDING GOOD ORE

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 29.—Ore is being followed by drift at a depth of 450 feet in the Aileen claim of the Morning Glory company by McLeod and company, lessees. The shoot is of moderate size but yields substantially in gold. While engaged in work in the shaft several months ago the lessees found ore worth several hundred dollars to the ton. A fair quantity was removed before the streak was exhausted.

MUCH GOLD IS SENT TO MEXICO

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—It was definitely learned today that the $750,000 in gold engaged for export yesterday was shipped to Mexico direct. Besides this amount, arrangements were made for the export of $1,000,000 additional.

The gold goes because of the high price at which silver is selling and bankers today declared that the situation had reached a point where gold exports to Mexico were profitable on an ordinary exchange basis. Silver sold today at 65¾. This is the highest price since December, 1898.

LAWYER'S WILL VOID.

The proverbial inability of eminent lawyers to frame their own wills so as to command the support of the courts has been again illustrated by the invalidating of the will of the late Chief Justice Paxton, of the supreme court of Pennsylvania. He devised a large portion of his landed property for the establishment of an agricultural school for poor boys. Under the Pennsylvania law wills containing charitable bequests must have the signatures of subscribing witnesses. But the chief justice forgot all about the witnesses and his bequest has been held void.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS

are cheap, convenient, certain, and harmless. Cheap, as one dose is usually sufficient to relieve the pain. Convenient, being little tablets, that you can always carry, and take as you would a lozenge. Certain, because they cure by soothing the irritated nerves. Harmless, as they contain no harmful drugs. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

MARKET NERVOUS

[illegible] Makes Further Advance---Steel Stocks Are Heavy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The pace of speculation was halted in today's market, partly as a general revulsion from the volatile rise of the last days in special stocks and partly a narrowing of the resources in money market, which exercised constraint upon speculative action. The effect of the excessive buoyancy was most pronounced in the [illegible] iron group and some other industrials. The railroad list [illegible] but narrowly and was slightly [illegible]. The general list was not free from evidences of depression, however. [illegible] the fluctuations continued to characterize the industrial department, [illegible] made a further advance during the day in repetition of its [illegible] for several days past, and while not free from the reactionary effects of the general movement, it persisted in its upward course. Tennessee [illegible] and Sloss-Sheffield Steel on the [illegible] hand slumped in a way to cause apprehension of disastrous consequences [illegible] the speculative holders in the stock. There was a fear that the contest in the [illegible] market, if there was one, had been completed by the acquisition of a majority of holdings of Tennessee Coal and [illegible] the market for the minority of the [illegible] would be allowed to take care of itself.

The persistent heaviness of the United States Steel stocks in face of the movement [illegible] iron and steel industrials in spite of the rumor industriously circulated that the control of these independent companies is sought in behalf of that corporation. The rumors regarding the group continued and the shares showed considerable strength. The assertions of passing of control of [illegible] Lead also persisted and the movements of Cotton Oil and Virginia-Carolina Chemical were coupled with talk of [illegible] merger.

[illegible] derived no benefit from the [illegible] for the extension to the [illegible] The lack of subscription privileges to the company's treasury stock was a disappointment to some of [illegible] recent speculative buyers and the [illegible] policy of the extension did not [illegible] sufficiently attractive to offset [illegible] disappointment.

With the Thanksgiving holiday coming [illegible] the last day of the month, preparations for the December 1 settlements [illegible] the themselves felt in the money market [illegible] today. The shifting of accounts incident to these preparations resulted in [illegible] the call money rate up to 96 [illegible] cent. The day's report of subtreasury operations showed losses to [illegible] institutions extended to nearly [illegible] for the week and New York [illegible] exchange on Chicago hung at par today [illegible] the subsidence of the [illegible] demand from that center. The [illegible] had a wholesome effect in prompting the closing out of speculative commitments. The movement in Amalgamated Copper was in response to the continued rise of price of its product, [illegible] declaration of another 1½ per cent [illegible] dividend. Lackawanna was regarded as explanatory of the extraordinary [illegible] level at which that stock [illegible] but its general effect was [illegible] Bonds were irregular. [illegible] sales, par value, $2,350,000.

[illegible] States bonds were all unchanged [illegible].

WHEAT STRONG

Possible Developments in Russia Cause Shorts to Buy Heavily.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—From start to finish the wheat market showed decided strength. During the first half of the session trading was active but later in the day the volume of business was very small. Shorts and commission houses were the principal bidders, the greatest demand coming from the shorts, some of whom were unwilling to take the chance of any possible Russian developments which might arise during the Thanksgiving recess. An advance of [illegible] at Liverpool was largely due the result of reports of fresh outbreaks in that country, and the shorts here did not care to risk the possibility of further disturbances. According to advices from Argentina, harvesting has been largely delayed by wet weather. Reports of a blizzard in the northwest which would check the movement of wheat to market and the protraction of a cold wave in the southwest which might injure the fall-sown crop also tended to increase prices. In addition to these influences cash wheat was in active demand at all grain centers in the United States. The market closed strong with prices practically at the highest point of the day. May opened [illegible] to [illegible] higher at 87⅞ to 88, advanced to 88[illegible] and closed at 88⅛.

Trading in the corn pit showed little activity but the market had a firm undertone. The market closed firm. May opened unchanged to ⅛ higher at 44 to 44⅛, sold up to 44½ and closed at 44⅜. Local receipts were 181 cars, with one of contract grade.

Oats were firm in sympathy with other grains. The May option opened unchanged to a shade higher at 31⅞ to 31⅞@32, sold up to 32 and closed at 31⅞@32.

Unusual activity marked the trading in provisions. General demand both for local and outside account caused a firm feeling, which held throughout the day. Demand from shorts was even more urgent than that shown yesterday. An advance of 5 to 10c in the price of live hogs created considerable bullish sentiment. The market closed strong with prices at about the highest point of the day. May pork closed at a gain of 22½c at $13.85. Lard was up 7½ at $7.42½. Ribs were 5c higher at $7.27½@$7.30.

MAKING A GREAT MAP.

About 100 years more will be required to complete the work of making a topographical map of the country, which was begun by the United States government in 1882. The work is being carried on in co-operation with the states, New York, for example, having appropriated annually something like $20,000 as its share. There has never been a topographical map of the United States published other than rough sketches. For that reason the government work will be one of the largest ever made.

PILL TAKING EXTRAORDINARY.

Ninety-six arsenic and iron pills at one time are a formidable, if not a record, dose. They were taken by an Italian girl of 16, named Elda, living at Trieste. She had been indisposed for some time and under medical direction was to take daily five or six pilules containing arsenic and iron. A few days ago, in an acute attack of nervous excitement, she swallowed the whole contents of the bottle—ninety-six pills, were great, but by prompt and drastic in all. Needless to say, her sufferings surgical action her life was saved.—Chicago Journal.

RESTLESS NIGHTS

Are due to an exhausted turbulent condition of the nervous system. Your sleep will be sound and refreshing if you will take one of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills on going to bed or when you awaken in the night. They soothe the nerves and sleep quickly follows. They are perfectly harmless if taken as directed. Sold by druggists, 25 doses, 25c. Never sold in bulk.

Fancy Desserts and Special Candies for Thanksgiving at Mueth's.

Our newly remodeled and refurnished store is now a veritable HORN OF PLENTY of good things for
